

PAUPER, 109 YEARS OLD, SAYS HE IS SON OF MONROE

Aged Floridan's Claim of Kinship With Fifth President Being Investigated by Memorial Association.

ONLY DAUGHTERS SHOWN IN RECORDS

Funds Raised for Claimant Being Held Pending Result of Inquiry Into His Story.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The claim of a 109-year-old pauper of Jacksonville, Fla., that he is the son of the fifth President of the United States is being investigated by Barron G. Collier, special deputy police commissioner, on behalf of members of the James Monroe Memorial Association and Foundation.

Distribution of $1000, subscribed for the relief of the claimant by Collier and his associates, awaits the result of the inquiry. The money was pledged at a dinner in the Columbia Yacht Club last June of those active in the campaign to raise $150,000 for the purchase and preservation of the house at 23 Prince street, in which President Monroe lived and died.

According to Mrs. Sallie Ludlow Niedlinger, chairman of the women's committee of the memorial association, a letter to "Major James Edward Monroe," at Jacksonville elicited a reply in which the claimant, who is described as "a poor, old, blind man," stated he was the son of President Monroe and that the information was given that financial assistance would be welcomed.

Although a fund, probably sufficient to care for the rest of his life, has been subscribed, Collier said yesterday that none of it will be disbursed until the investigation now under way is completed. He expects to be in about two weeks.

Old Deck House His Home.
The facts already disclosed are these:

For as long as anyone in Jacksonville can remember, "Major Monroe" has asserted squatter's rights to a plot of land on the bank of the St. John's River, where he now lives in a squalid little shack that was once a deck house of a tugboat.

By his oft-told tale, recited willingly to all who will listen, he has made himself one of the legendary figures of Northern Florida. His story has never varied. He repeated it yesterday to a correspondent for the Post-Dispatch and the New York Times.

He said he was born July 4, 1815, the son of the man who, in two years, was destined to become chief executive of an infant nation and later famous as the proclaimer of the Monroe Doctrine.

While still a young man, he said, he served in the Mexican War, after which followed a period of roaming that brought him to Jacksonville in 1842. Fawcett, there only to mark the river front plot as his own, he enlisted in the Confederate Army and was mustered out four years later with the rank of major. Then he returned to his home on the river bank.

Today his little plot is surrounded by the homes of Jacksonville's wealthiest residents, but he has succeeded in keeping it intact. His living depends on the bounty of his neighbors and on the value of his salvage from the river.

Obstacles to Belief.
Obstacles in the way of a belief of the aged man's story become apparent with a study of President Monroe's history. In 1815, Monroe was 57 years old and the father of two grown daughters—the only children of record. A nephew, James Monroe, was an army lieutenant in 1817, and presumably, at least 21 years old at that time. Another nephew, Joseph, was a schoolboy in Paris in 1815.

Niedlinger today expressed herself as dubious of making clear the fact that money subscribed came from individual members of the association, and is in no way a draft upon the funds so far raised for the purchase of the Monroe memorial.

JAPAN GAINS THE RIGHT TO APPEAL FROM WORLD COURT

League of Nations to be a matter solely within domestic jurisdiction of a state, the question shall not prevent consideration of the question by the council or by the assembly under article 11 of the covenant.

The second point takes the form of an amendment to the paragraph declaring the aggressor to be any state disregarding the judicial decision that the dispute arises out of a matter which is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of another state. This amendment adds thereto the words, "Nevertheless, a state shall only be presumed to be an aggressor if it has not previously submitted the question to the council or assembly under article 11 of the covenant."

Having gained their original point, the Japanese have now dropped their substitute amendment, the danger of which lay in its implied questioning of the doctrine of the sovereignty of a State over its domestic affairs.

Door to Mediation Open.
By the preliminary accord worked out today, the Tokyo Government has obtained an arrangement whereby the door to conciliation and mediation will not be shut by a decision of the World Court, but will be left open so that a discontented nation may still air its grievances before the League of Nations.

The attitude of the British dominions remained an unknown quantity and thus left the matter in suspense.

The basic idea of the new accord is pointed out already exists in the league covenant, because Article XI stipulates that it is the friendly right of each member to call attention to any circumstances whatever, which threaten to disturb international peace.

Task Given to Three Men.
The entire Japanese difficulty was thrashed out yesterday at a private meeting of the league council, when Viscount Ishii, at the request of the council, made a frank exposition of the Japanese viewpoint. This council examination was followed by repeated private conferences between the principal delegates, all desperately striving to find light on the issue raised by Japan.

Eventually the problem was entrusted to the study of three men: Sir Cecil Hurst of England, M. Loucheur, France, and Signor Scialoja, Italy, the first and last named being celebrated international jurists, and M. Loucheur being one of the most prominent industrialists of France, owner of newspapers and a former cabinet minister. This committee will meet tomorrow morning.

Everybody connected with the affair was so worn out and excited by the suddenness and gravity of the issue that by unanimous assent all decided to pass the night in quiet reflection. Realizing the importance a revised protocol would have in the eyes of the world, the delegates decided to follow the admonition of M. Loucheur, that the hour was so fatal that the assembly must avoid haste which leads to tragedy, and remain in Geneva long enough to deal calmly with the question from every possible standpoint.

M. Loucheur said last night: "We are all assuming that this Japanese amendment is not aimed at America or the British dominions. If we thought so we would have voted against it immediately."

Troubles for England.
In the meantime the English delegation did not have an easy day with the representatives of the British dominions. The dominion statesmen held four conferences and discussed the possible effect of the Japanese amendment to cancel the clause of the aggressor article in the protocol, which forbids nations from going to war in contempt of World Court decisions. Their attitude was distinctly that of urging a stiff stand against the Japanese demand.

The last word last night was that the British and French viewpoints are absolutely in accord. One of their spokesmen said: "There are one, two or three directions in which we can move and still satisfy everybody. We have absolutely no intention of settling this by grouping powers against powers and bringing pressure to bear upon Japan. We must settle

RIDING MASTER KILLS WOMAN HORSE TRAINER

Shoots Young Equestrienne, Opening Convention, He Who, He Says, Is His Wife, in Jealous Rage Over Ex-Police Chief.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—"I wish I might have killed him instead," said George Munding, society riding master, in his cell in the Wheaton jail, where he is being held today on a charge of murder, following the slaying of Mrs. Julia Douglas, young equestrienne and mistress of a riding academy, 30 years old, former chief of Police of La Grange, Ill., whom he charged with being his wife, the third figure in the love triangle.

"He's the fault of it all," Munding declared to police.

The shooting, which occurred late yesterday, is said to have followed an argument over Plummer. Munding is said to have gone to Mrs. Douglas' paddock in Hinsdale, where an argument over two blooded horses owned by Munding and in Mrs. Douglas' possession started. Mrs. Douglas is said to have informed Munding that one of the horses had been injured so severely that it had to be shot.

She admitted to him, he told police, that she had Plummer do the shooting because she didn't have the heart to do it.

At the mention of Plummer's name, Munding is said to have gone into a rage. The argument which followed was terminated by Munding shouting:

"Well, if I can't have you, no one else shall."

He fired the shot which ended Mrs. Douglas' life. He was arrested as he raced toward Chicago in his automobile, which was stopped in the exclusive North Shore suburbs, where Munding and Mrs. Douglas had an extensive following in the fashionable younger set.

Known as Munding's fiancée, her husband, an army officer, it was thought, had died several years ago. Munding, however, declared today that Mrs. Douglas was his wife. They had been secretly married three years ago, he said, but had not let it become known for business reasons.

Munding pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for Oct. 8.

GIRL DEPUTY AT MIDNIGHT NABS TWO "MOONSHINERS"

West Virginia Officer Waits Alone Three Hours on Road, Takes Men and Liquor to Jail.

By the Associated Press.
PARSONS, W. Va., Sept. 30.—Miss Gladys Kuh, a Tucker County Deputy Sheriff, arrived at the Parsons jail early today and turned over to Sheriff J. B. Close two alleged moonshiners she had captured on a lonely country road at midnight last night. The girl officer escorted her prisoners in at the point of a pistol, reminding them that they had better be good, because "A woman would not have any better sense than to shoot."

The capture was the result of a hasty search by the Sheriff yesterday afternoon. Clarence and Thomas Groves of Petersburg were observed passing through Parsons in an automobile. Miss Kuh remarked that they "looked suspicious" and the Sheriff said "Go get them. You have as much authority as I."

Miss Kuh obtained a search warrant and after a three-hour wait on the main highway leading from Parsons the Groves machine appeared. Miss Kuh produced her pistol, ordered them to halt, read the warrant, found 49 quarts of "moonshine" in the car and made the arrests.

Natural Gas Well in Cairo.
CAIRO, Ill., Sept. 30.—Natural gas was struck within a few blocks of the Cairo business section yesterday. The well was sunk by Cotter Brothers, wholesale produce dealers, near their storage plant. A well has been producing gas for some time on the outskirts of the city.

In argument with our friends the Japanese.

Influenced by remarks from the Japanese delegation itself, the impression grew that the Japanese had decided to make their great stand at Geneva in behalf of equality of treatment for Far Eastern races, and particularly the Japanese, at the hands of the other world races. Many of the delegates frankly complimented the Japanese upon the courage and boldness and address of their move, pointing out that Japan was here, coming no single country, but fighting for a principle through the mechanism of the League of Nations, which is dedicated to fostering good will and understanding between peoples.

This principle is deemed to be vastly wider in scope than the question of the manner of determining an aggressor state to which Japan is opposed.

Considerable interest was manifested among the various delegations as to the reason of the Japanese stand on American opinion. Although the United States is not a member of the League of Nations, the delegates seem to hesitate upon adopting any policy which will create embarrassment for America.

PRESIDENT OF BANKERS TALKS ON TAX BURDEN

Also Opposes Government Ownership of Railways and Curb on Courts.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The fifty-fifth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association began its general sessions today, with more than 6000 bankers, representing all sections of the United States, in attendance.

The convention was opened by Walter W. Head, president, in an address in which he voiced opposition to Government ownership of railroads, urged vigorous opposition to all efforts to give Congress the power to override decisions of the Supreme Court, and declared agricultural problems were predominantly economic with a remedy in economics rather than political panaceas.

Head, quoting in turn from John W. Davis and Calvin Coolidge, was interrupted by applause when he exhorted the association to oppose all efforts to give Congress the power to override decisions of the Supreme Court. He told his audience of between 6000 and 8000 delegates, that "a return to common sense" was "what the bankers stand for regardless of political partisan-alism."

Head later called to the rostrum Sir John Alder of Toronto, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, who said: "I would only wish the trade and commercial relations between our two countries were as satisfactory as the financial relations. That, as you probably know, and as the Canadian people know, is not a question for bankers, but for our politicians; and it is dangerous, as Mr. Head will know, for bankers to interfere very much in political affairs."

Sir John added that, while it was commonly and in part correctly supposed that the Canadian banking system was based on the Scottish system, the Canadian plan "originated in the mind of Alexander Hamilton."

The convention adopted the report of the executive council. The report included the unanimous opinion of that body "That it seemed fortunate for the Senate of the United States to take such action as might lead to the termination of the gentlemen's agreement established between Japan and the United States, thus releasing the Japanese Government from any responsibility as to what its nationals may do and thereby transferring the whole burden of exclusion upon our Government."

The report was presented by F. N. Shepherd, executive manager.

"I would not for a moment—and do not—condemn all legislation that may be proposed for the relief of agriculture," Head said in his address. "Political action has its proper share, but its efficacy is limited to the removal of artificial obstacles which interfere with the normal functioning of economic principles. Legislation may help to keep open the avenues through which economic law is free to operate, but it can do no more. It may temporarily retard the ebb and flow of economic ideas, but it will alleviate, but it can not cure."

Burden of Taxation.
Head dwelt upon the burden of taxation now prevailing and stated that it had reached the point of oppression.

"The Federal taxes of 1920," he said, "aggregated more than $5,000,000,000. This year, after strenuous efforts to reduce the war-time peak, the total still exceeds $3,000,000,000. State and local taxes have increased even greater rate. Taxation has become more than a problem; it is a threat of impending disaster."

"Nor is the burden of government limited to taxation. We are oppressed by a multiplicity of restrictive laws and administrative regulations. It is estimated that there are over 2,000,000 laws and ordinances in the records of nations. Rates and municipalities."

"In the face of this record, despite the general recognition of the overwhelming burden of government, we find ourselves constantly waging a defensive battle against programs that would transfer still greater duties to government, that would hamper individual initiative still further, that will—put into practice—crush individual ambition and destroy individual opportunity. Efforts to nationalize our industries are especially destructive at the present time, when our railroads need careful guidance in order that they may avoid financial disaster and in order that the transportation burden, borne by the public, may be kept at the lowest possible figure."

Stability in Europe.
"Next to the improvement in agriculture, our greatest encouragement is the tendency toward political, economic and social stability in Europe. The various nations appear to have forsaken political expedients for the more certain relief of sound economic practice. Harmony bids fair to succeed discord, and a common ground has been found for joint endeavor. Previous disappointments justify caution against too great optimism, but we have every reason to believe that there is greater promise of permanent European stability than at any previous time since July, 1914."

This great achievement is not the work of any single man. Statesmen of several Governments, the people of many nations, made it possible. But in so far as special credit can be accorded, the largest individual measure must go to the man whose name is hailed in every nation as the principal author of the plan since adopted—Charles G. Dawes of Chicago—and to his associates, Owen D. Young of New York and Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles."

Depredation against banks reached its peak in the last year, the protective committee of the association reported to the executive council of the association.

The cost of crime to banking and industry exceeds $2,500,000,000 annually.

The constant increase in criminality since 1919, said the committee, "has passed the day of reckoning, and unless bankers themselves apply themselves there is no assurance of this rising tide of crime subsiding."

Japanese Explanation of Opposition to Protocol

GENEVA, Sept. 30.—A statement to the correspondent of the Associated Press, a member of the Japanese delegation said concerning the disputed paragraph in the protocol:

"We are determined in our opposition to the protocol as it now stands because it puts Japan in a most unfavorable position. Japanese public opinion will never permit the Government to subscribe to a document which closes the door on us and virtually makes diplomatic negotiations impossible on subjects which the World Court decides are solely within the national jurisdiction of a state with which we have differences."

"What we particularly object to is that Japan would be proclaimed an aggressor state if she declined to abide by an arbitrary decision which declared that the dispute had arisen out of a question domestic in nature. It is not only the question of immigration with the United States. When you consider how the Japanese are mistreated in South Africa, we are treated very well in the United States. The Japanese are even forbidden accommodations in hotels."

Problem With U. S.
"The immigration problem with the United States is serious and has aroused the Japanese public, but there is a vast variety of other problems affecting the Japanese which other nations might plead concern solely their national sovereignty and hence are not subject to international arbitration. The Spanish-American War sprang out of the administration of Cuba. Tomorrow Japan may be murdered by police in China and other countries and the plea of state sovereignty can immediately be put forward as a reason for non-submission to arbitration."

"Instead of accepting the protocol, which aggravates the stipulations of paragraph 8, article 15, of the league covenant, we would much rather stick by the covenant without changing it, even if it does not completely satisfy us."

Covenant Clause on Disputes.
The speaker was referring to the covenant clause which provides that, if a dispute is found by the league council to arise out of a matter which by international law is solely within the domestic jurisdiction of the state complained of, then the council shall report and shall make no recommendation as to its settlement. He continued: "That permits diplomatic negotiations; the protocol prevents them. Yet diplomatic negotiations should be encouraged, not hindered. We merely want the council of the league to continue its efforts at mediation, even when the World Court rules that a conflict is the outgrowth of a domestic question."

The Japanese spokesman concluded by saying that Japan was embarrassed because the United States probably would not be a signatory to the protocol; hence the protocol would have no power as regards the United States.

Bookkeeper Tells How Meininger Directed Borrowing of Funds.
The testimony adduced yesterday was largely repetitions of testimony at the first trial of Meininger here on an embezzlement charge, in May, 1923. It was designed to show the insolvency of the bank from its records and otherwise.

The first witness was Miss Irene Michel, owner of the Purdy Lunch Co., 1147 Market street, St. Louis, who told of making a deposit of $355 in cash at the bank 10 days before it was closed. This is the deposit involved in this particular charge of accepting a deposit in an insolvent bank.

Frank J. Schneider, of 4117A Kosuth avenue, St. Louis, who was promoted to general bookkeeper of the bank, he said, because he was about the oldest employee at the time, due to the war, said Meininger hired him and gave him his instructions. He proceeded to demonstrate from the record of the

MONUMENT TO BALBOA UNVEILED AT PANAMA

400th Anniversary of Discovery of Pacific Ocean Commemorated by Latin Americans.

PANAMA, Sept. 30.—Sixteen special envoys from Latin-American countries and Spain participated in the dedication yesterday of a monument of Balboa in commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the Pacific Ocean. President Porras unveiled the life-sized bronze statue, which faces the Pacific Ocean, stands on a terrestrial globe supported by male figures representing the white, Indian, yellow and negro races. It is on a site between the new hospital and the former Memorial Institute. Its cost was defrayed by funds subscribed in Spain and the Latin-American states.

Panama Canal officials and the American Minister took part in the ceremonies.

PROHIBITION FOR TURKEY WHEN FINANCES PERMIT

"Fussfoot" Johnson Arranges With Moslems to Enter World League Against Alcohol.

BUCHARA, Sept. 30.—William E. ("Fussfoot") Johnson has arrived here after a fortnight in Constantinople and Bulgaria. He concluded arrangements with the Moslem prohibition organization to enter the World League, and states that the prohibition movement is strong among the Turks and Bulgarians.

The Turkish Government, according to Johnson, will again introduce prohibition when the state can raise the necessary revenue without liquor taxes. He is of the opinion that prohibition sentiment also is strong in Bulgaria, and that Bulgaria will be the first country in Central or Southeastern Europe to enact dry legislation.

Schneider also told of Meininger's activity in directing work in the bank. He said that on Dec. 27, 1921, the day of Miss Michel's deposit, Meininger sent him to the American Trust Co. with a note to borrow $50,000 for the credit of the Night and Day Bank, and that the cashier sent him there again four days later to borrow $100,000 more, although the Night and Day Bank statements at the time purported to show more than $800,000 with which to do business.

Wilmer Kingston of 3855 Marfitt avenue, St. Louis, former head teller at the bank, related that Meininger had instructed him to charge off various cash items and identified one entry by which he had charged off $174,877 in cash items. The State contends that Kingston's entry was made a clearing house for these items by Meininger. This group of items comprised chiefly transactions of Meyer Knitz, oil man, and formed the basis of Meininger's conviction for embezzlement of this sum.

V. W. Smith, vice president of the First National Bank of St. Louis, told of the "post mortem" on the Night and Day by a group of bankers the night it was closed. Fred J. Cornwell Jr., who was a director of the bank, gave testimony that Meininger was the executive in the bank. Virgil D. Wall, assistant examiner for the St. Louis Clearing House, told of an examination he made some time before the Night and Day Bank was closed, when cash items were found.

WOMAN SUING J. E. HOW TELLS OF 18-YEAR ROMANCE

Mrs. Cora Victoria Harvey
Says Millionaire Hobo's Dignity Compelled Her to Love Him.

SEEKS $100,000 FOR BREACH OF PROMISE

They Searched All Day for Justice of Peace to Marry Them When They First Met, She Asserts.

The air of dignified deliberation about James Eads How, "millionaire hobo," which first attracted his secretary, Mrs. Cora Victoria Harvey, and moved her to love him, was to a great degree responsible for his failure to marry her and for her resultant $100,000 breach of promise suit filed here yesterday in Circuit Court, she said today.

Filing of the petition followed an announcement that How had married Miss Ingeborg Sorenson in Chicago, Aug. 19 last, and was spending his honeymoon with his bride in California.

In contrast to the perfunctory petition filed yesterday, Mrs. Harvey's recital of her romance with How included the story of one of their first meetings in a restaurant where she took his dictation after the meal, a tale of an all-day search for a Justice of the Peace to marry them and of a marriage ceremony that died aborning when she insisted that he wanted her relatives to witness the wedding.

As a background to their romance there was the work of How among his chosen friends, the hobos, the communists and the other strivers after a different order of things in which Mrs. Harvey was his companion and helper, as his secretary, for 18 years.

Attracted by His Dignity.
"His dignity and self-possession always attracted me," Mrs. Harvey told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "Even his love letters were reticent and dignified, and I loved him all the more for his repression. One couldn't help loving him knowing him, as I did, for 18 years."

"I can see now that this same reticence was one of the causes of our failure to be married. We discussed it often and many times were on the very verge of marriage but always were hindered by some circumstances which often grew out of his deliberation. It was not until 1914 that he gave me an engagement ring. That was one evidence of the deliberateness that characterized his every action."

Mrs. Harvey glanced at her left hand resting on her lap.

Exhibits "Engagement Ring."
"I don't wear the ring now, you'll observe," she said, arising, "but I will show it to you," and with a touch of rueful pride she got the sparkling symbol and exhibited it.

"I used to take it off," she continued, regarding the ring remissly, "especially when our work took us among men to whom the diamond might prove a severe temptation. Mr. How would always take it and would ask me where it was."

"Put it on," he would say, "you're still engaged to me." There were several times when I attempted to give it back to him—occasions when he had become fired with his mission and had told me he was wedded to his work. But he would always let the ring lie where I had placed it and I would finally have to take it up again."

Their first disagreement, Mrs. Harvey recalled, came when they began to discuss the marriage ceremony.

"Almost Married Once."
"Mr. How put no stock in ceremony," she said. "He believed that marriage should be simply an agreement. But I knew there would have to be a more conventional marriage if there were to be children. In time he came around to my view, I think, and once, in Philadelphia, we were almost married."

"On that occasion we set out in a machine to look for a Justice of the Peace, looking most of the time in New Jersey. Finally we found one at home in New Jersey. He told us that we would have to secure a license."

"That evening we took a taxicab to a place, which, as I recall, was known as the scene of many secret marriages. A license was issued and witnesses were to be furnished on the spot, but I wanted my relatives to witness the ceremony. I tried to call a relative in Philadelphia, but I couldn't reach him and the upshot of the whole affair was that there was no wedding."

At their last meeting, Mrs. Harvey related, How's attitude toward her had changed and he said no more about getting married. She at first ascribed his failure to do so to his usual reticence, but later learned that he had been married to Miss Sorenson a week before the meeting.

"It was at Atlantic City that we met," she said. "I had expected that we were to be married and would go on board on an inter-

HELD ON COMPLAINT OF GIRL STENOGRAPHER

A. G. Whittaker Says Adele
Berthold Followed Him
When He Went on Trip.

When Arthur G. Whittaker, 34 years old, a chemist, left St. Louis Sept. 6 on a journey east, Adele Berthold, 19, a stenographer, went along. "She followed me to Detroit, Buffalo, Toronto and New York," Whittaker related today at police headquarters shortly before the issuance of a Federal warrant which charges him with violation of the Mann act.

Miss Berthold, who lives at 1818 South Tenth street, has said that she and Whittaker went through a marriage ceremony in a church in Toronto. She said she believed he was divorced. Instead, he has a wife and son, who live at 5019 South Grand boulevard.

Silent on Alleged Marriage.
Whittaker refused to say anything about the alleged marriage in Toronto. The young woman has shown what purports to be a record of the marriage. As it took place outside the United States, if at all, the St. Louis prosecuting authorities are not sure whether there will be a basis for a bigamy charge, in addition to the Federal charge.

The Federal warrant charges that Whittaker transported the young woman over two railroads, lines and other common carriers, from St. Louis to Toronto, in pursuit of an unlawful purpose. It takes no account of the alleged marriage ceremony.

"I am sure Adele," did not tell this story voluntarily," Whittaker said. "Her relatives are behind this." That appeared to be the case, and it was learned that the young woman told her story very reluctantly.

"It was a matter of sympathy on my part," Whittaker said. "She was a divorcee, and was in financial difficulties, because of illness. I gave her a job as stenographer. I paid her doctors' bills, out of sympathy. And when I went away she followed me." He would not say how her traveling expenses were provided.

Other allegations are that George W. Niedringhaus is heavily interested in the St. Louis Coking and Iron Co., a manufacturing concern in which trust funds could not legally be invested and that he induced the directors of the investment company to put $25,000 in its stock.

Objection Made to Loan.
Complaint also is made that, through the will of the elder Niedringhaus provided all the income should be distributed, the directors, from 1908 to 1922, inclusive, paid out dividends of only $53,400, though it had a balance Dec. 31, 1922, of $350,000. Objection is made to an alleged loan of 5000 shares of common stock of the National Stamping and Stamping Co. to "certain parties" without authority. Also that Directors Randolph and Ortelwin voted to transfer 700 and 900 shares, respectively, of the same stock to themselves. Transfer of $25,000 of the Granite, St. Louis & Eastern Belt Line Railway to George W. Niedringhaus is objected to on the ground the stock was the property of the investment company and the stockholders were not consulted.

S. T. G. Smith, counsel for the investment company, in a statement issued today, declared the charges that George W. Niedringhaus or any of the directors misappropriated any of the assets to be wholly untrue. On the contrary, he asserted the estate was heavily entailed, when taken over, and

REMOVAL OF ITS PRESIDENT SOUGHT

Action Charges Board Is Dominated and Directors "Are Nothing More or Less Than Dummies."

Suit for an accounting, appointment of a receiver and removal of the president of the corporation formed to conduct the $4,000,000 estate of the late William F. Niedringhaus, manufacturer, was filed in the Circuit Court late yesterday by Mrs. Louise R. Niedringhaus of 4550 Lindell boulevard, widow of Oliver B. Niedringhaus, a deceased son of the testator.

Mrs. Niedringhaus, through her attorney, Douglas W. Robert, sued individually and as trustee, under the will of her husband, who died on the eleventh of the estate. It was directed against the William F. Niedringhaus Investment Co., a corporation, and its directors—George W. Albert, W. and Lee L. Niedringhaus, Frederick C. Ortelwin and Nathaniel B. Randolph.

The elder Niedringhaus died in 1908, and directed, as was done in 1911, that his sons should convey the estate into a corporation and distribute the 5000 shares of the holding company equally between his 10 children, leaving an eleventh share for his grandchildren. In this division, Oliver B. Niedringhaus received 454.09 shares.

Restraining Order Sought.
In the suit filed yesterday, Mrs. Louise Niedringhaus asks that George W. Niedringhaus, who is president of the National Stamping and Stamping Co., which was the nucleus of the father's estate, be restrained from exercising any control over the holding company, that his office as president and director be declared vacated, and an accounting be had of all sums of money handled.

In addition, appointment of a receiver is asked, to ascertain the indebtedness to and of the investment company, and to protect the suit to recover all assets of the company which have been "wasted, converted or conveyed to any party." The petition charges that George W. Niedringhaus, the oldest son, "through his influence over his brothers and sisters and brothers-in-law, has always dominated said corporation," and "has controlled the election of directors, who are nothing more or less than dummies on said board."

The petition then enumerates thirteen transactions, which the plaintiff questions. Two notes for $100,000 in favor of H. E. Hayward, which were allowed against the estate in 1910, are questioned, as a result of which Hayward holds judgments against the estate, which, "if permitted to be enforced, will result in the waste of said estate in said sum."

Say No Audits Were Made.
Complaint is made that the investment company has never made a report to its stockholders, and none to the shareholders, except those of the directorate, until March, 1924, when an audit was made of the company's affairs and those of the Granite Realty and Investment Co., in which the elder Niedringhaus was heavily interested. This audit was made on Dec. 21, 1922, and the plaintiff's demand to bring it up to Dec. 31, 1923, has been ignored, the petition avers.

Other allegations are that George W. Niedringhaus is heavily interested in the St. Louis Coking and Iron Co., a manufacturing concern in which trust funds could not legally be invested and that he induced the directors of the investment company to put $25,000 in its stock.

At the time of the tragedy Major Cronkrite was 24 years old. Captain Rosenbluth, a graduate of the Yale forestry school, was 36, and had been in business in the Orient before joining the Army. Potthier was 22 and had been a laborer before becoming a soldier.

Earthquake in Maine.
PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 30.—A slight earthquake was felt today in this city, and reports from Rockland and other Maine points indicate that the movement was apparent over a large area. In Rockland two distinct shocks were reported, the first at 3:50 o'clock, rocked buildings, while the second, five minutes later, was slighter.

That George W. Niedringhaus "through his more than able management had brought the estate into fine condition." The statement asserted that four lawyers had declined to accept the suit, and that the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. had resigned as co-trustee of Oliver Niedringhaus' estate, rather than join in the suit. He said all of the stockholders, other than Louise Niedringhaus, fully approve of the way in which the William F. Niedringhaus Investment Co. had been carried on.

CASPER YOST TELLS COOLIDGE MISSOURI LOOKS DEMOCRATIC

St. Louisan, at White House, Says
La Follette Will Cut Heavily Into German Vote Here.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Casper S. Yost of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, provided a most unusual visitor at the White House today. Instead of regaling the President with none but rosy predictions, Yost told him that Missouri this year looked like a Democratic request. He said that Kansas would damage the Republican cause by cutting heavily into the St. Louis German vote.

Iowa and Nebraska were described by Yost as doubtful States. He said he thought that Kansas was fairly safe for the President. Yost was the guest of the President at luncheon.

TRIAL TO SOLVE CRONKRITE DEATH MYSTERY BEGINS

The belief that his son did not commit suicide, that he was too expert with a pistol to have shot himself accidentally, and that it was impossible for an accidental shot to have wounded him in the spot where the fatal bullet entered.

Gen. Cronkrite took the matter to Attorney-General, and several Government investigators were set to work. Rosenbluth and Potthier were questioned again. On March 19, 1921, Potthier signed a confession that he was responsible for the death of Maj. Cronkrite. Potthier said his pistol was discharged accidentally.

The next day Potthier altered his story and said he had willfully shot and killed Maj. Cronkrite at the request of Potthier's wife, Mrs. Cronkrite. Potthier made several statements in the course of his confessions, and they varied considerably. He was lodged in jail at Providence, R. I., near which he was working on a railroad. Rosenbluth was in the city in New York City. He declared the charges without foundation.

A few days later, Potthier asserted in newspaper interviews that he had been induced to confess to the murder by third-degree methods.

There then arose a question whether the Federal Government or the State of Washington has jurisdiction in the case. This was finally decided in favor of the Federal Government, when the Department of Justice assigned the case to the United States District Court in Tacoma, and instructed Judge Cushman to summon a grand jury.

Persecuted, Says Rosenbluth.
In the meantime there was much discussion of the case both within and without the army. Rosenbluth, who is of Jewish parentage, openly charged that he was the victim of a second Dreyfus affair, that he was being persecuted. General Cronkrite and his supporters answered that Rosenbluth had escaped trial through the efforts of powerful friends.

The controversy became so spirited that accusations were made by both sides against the Department of Justice and the War Department, and United States Senators Charles McNary and Reed Smoot of Pennsylvania, gave notice that they would demand a congressional investigation unless the case were aired in court.

The grand jury met in Tacoma in the summer of 1922 and voted indictments charging Rosenbluth and Potthier with first-degree murder. Rosenbluth was re-arrested in New York, and Potthier taken into custody in Providence, R. I. Appeal was taken to the Federal Courts on the long-mooted question of jurisdiction. United States Commissioner Hitchcock, of New York, decided, late in 1922, that the government did not have jurisdiction. The Government, however, appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, which, in the spring of 1924, ruled that the question of jurisdiction must be decided first by the Federal Circuit Court for Western Washington. The trial was ordered to proceed.

Defendants Tried Separately.
Last June Judge Cushman set the trial for Sept. 30, and granted the request of the Government that the defendants be tried separately. Rosenbluth has been at liberty on $20,000 bail. Potthier could not post bail and has been in the county jail here for several months awaiting his trial.

At the time of the tragedy Major Cronkrite was 24 years old. Captain Rosenbluth, a graduate of the Yale forestry school, was 36, and had been in business in the Orient before joining the Army. Potthier was 22 and had been a laborer before becoming a soldier.

Two boys, driving an automobile at Fountain place and Walton avenue Sunday afternoon, attracted the attention of Detectives Upton, Siefert and Teeter. They examined the car and found it was stolen Saturday from Albert Labrach of 4663 Delmar boulevard. They took the boys and the car to the Deer Street Station.

The boys, Marvin Michael, 15, years old, of 4109A Laclede avenue, and Raymond Darrow, 16, of 5030A Vernon avenue, said they and Richard Henninger, 16, of 4414 Washington boulevard, and Robert Logan, 18, 5571 Vernon avenue, had stolen 25 or 30 machines in the past two months, using them for joyriding and in holdups and burglaries. Usually, they abandoned the cars when through with them, they said, but in some instances, they stripped them of accessories, which they sold.

They could not remember all the robberies they had committed, but mentioned the burglary of a drug store at 5101 Delmar boulevard, where they found $100; holding up Mrs. Margaret Kuehner of 3110 North Nineteenth street and getting $100; holding up Miss Maule Tully at the Western Union building at 4715 Delmar boulevard and getting $127; and robbing a drug store at 5801 Delmar boulevard and getting $45 and some stamps.

At the Darrow home the detectives found two bicycles which had been freed of the boys' memories concerning a robbery of a store at Grand avenue and Lucky street, where they obtained $50 and the bicycles.

Capt. Hannagan was curious to know what the boys did with all that money. Michael said they spent it mostly on gasoline and girls but he was saving up to go to California and "become a great high jumper."

Logan was arrested at his home and Henninger at a military school at Mexico, Mo., where his father had sent him recently.

Warrants were obtained. Darrow, who appears to have been the leader of the gang, is held at the House of Detention. The others were released on $5000 bond each.

COMMUNIST SEDITION CASE CAUSES STORM IN COMMONS

Abandoning of Prosecution of Editor Brings Threat of Vote of Censure Move.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Stormy scenes occurred in the House of Commons today during the questioning of Attorney-General Patrick Hastings with regard to the mysterious abandonment of prosecution on the charge of sedition of the editor of the Communist paper, Workers Weekly.

Prime Minister MacDonald declared he was not willing to allow an exposure at this time of the real circumstances of the case and urged that further consideration of it be postponed until the regular autumn session of the House. To this all parties agreed.

Thus the case will be taken up by the House next week.

Former Prime Minister Baldwin, conservative leader, hinted that the opposition might move a vote of censure.

The Attorney-General asserted that the Communist party desired to make a martyr of the editor through prosecution. Premier MacDonald said he had not been consulted. The Attorney-General stated that after investigation he had decided the editor was not criminally responsible and the facts did not warrant prosecution.

AUSTRIA STIRRED BY EXPOSE IN WAKE OF BANK CRASH

Three Bankers, Including Country's 'Financial Caesar,' Disappear, and Their Valuable Are Seized by Police.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Sept. 30.—Sensational developments are reported here in connection with the failure of the Deposit Bank and, according to a semi-official statement, a warrant will be issued for a former president of the bank if a judicial inquiry warrants this step.

Warrants already have been issued for a director of another firm, and efforts are being made to trace another former president of the Deposit Bank. All three have disappeared.

The police yesterday searched the houses of the three persons concerned and seized a quantity of money, jewels and other valuables. A mysterious feature of the case is the disappearance of certain important documents from a room in the bank.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—All of Austria is excited, according to a Vienna dispatch to the London Chronicle, by police proceedings against Samillo Catiglioni, known as the "financial Caesar" and generally declared to be Austria's richest man, in connection with alleged frauds involving huge sums of money. Herr Neumann and Herr Goldstein, co-directors of his enterprises, are accused.

Catiglioni left Vienna recently and a summons has been issued, according to the newspaper, calling upon him to return. It was during the World War that he became known as the nation's wealthiest man and it was then that he was made controller of the Deposit Bank, which failed last May.

MacDONALD SAYS BOUNDARY BILL WON'T COERCE ULSTER
Premier Moves for Second Reading of Irish Measure in House of Commons.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Prime Minister MacDonald moved second reading in the House of Commons today of the bill providing for the creation of an Irish boundary commission without the participation of Ulster.

In making the motion, the Premier declared it was the essential duty of the Government to fulfill its obligations. He said he resented the charge that the Government's move was an attempt to coerce Ulster.

Herbert Asquith, former Premier and Liberal leader, declared that the Liberals would give the Irish bill their hearty and undivided support.

BURTON SAYS WHEELER MADE
"BAREFACED MISSTATEMENT"

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 26.—Congressman T. K. Burton of Cleveland, in an address opening the Republican campaign here last night, criticized Senator Wheeler of Montana for uttering what Burton termed a "barefaced misstatement" in an address here recently regarding Teapot Dome.

Burton's address was delivered several hours after Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, keynote of the Democratic National Convention, opened the Democratic campaign.

"A barefaced misstatement was uttered by Senator Wheeler here recently to the effect that the leasing of Teapot Dome caused a loss of billions to the people," said Burton. "While there is no justification for Senator Fall on the transaction, the truth is that the base of the Teapot Dome field was exceedingly favorable to the Government and to talk of billions is absurd, because no such amount was involved."

"Senator Harrison charged President Coolidge with responsibility for Teapot Dome, because he heard the congressional resolution to investigate it and sat in on the Cabinet meetings."

"The committee did not begin hearings until after he was in the White House, and did not report until June, 1924. Mr. Coolidge appointed attorneys to take the cases to the grand jury. He stands as you and I do, for punishment of the guilty and doing of justice. We should have an end to all this superfidity." Harrison, in his speech, after referring to the fact that Mr. Coolidge sat in the Harding Cabinet, said: "If Calvin Coolidge did not obtain some inside information touching the corruption of the Teapot Dome from these Cabinet members, then it was certainly his duty, in the interest of the country and in good faith of his high position to his party and administration, to apprise the President and the Cabinet of what he had heard as presiding officer of the Senate."

LEAGUE TO DECIDE TURKO - BRITISH ROW OVER MOSUL

Both Powers Agree to Accept Decision of a Committee of Three in Oil
Lands Dispute.

GENEVA, Sept. 26.—Notable progress towards the settlement of the Mosul controversy was made in the Council of the League of Nations today when representatives of Turkey and Great Britain agreed to accept the appointment of a committee of three who will collect all the available information on the Mosul question and submit to the council their suggestions as to the best means of solving the problem.
Rich oil lands are claimed by both countries.

Congratulatory speeches were made by Lord Parmoor of Great Britain and Ali Fethi Bey of Turkey, both of whom agreed to accept any decision concerning the frontier between Iraq and Turkey which the council might pronounce.

Today's developments before the council were regarded as increasing the possibility that Turkey soon would apply for membership in the League.

Concerning the recent reported skirmishes on the Iraq frontier between Turkish and British troops, the council urged that both the Turkish and British Governments maintain peace on both sides of the status quo frontier pending a definite settlement.

GERMAN PAYMENTS EXCEED AMOUNT DUE IN SEPTEMBER

More Than $3,000,000 Gold Marks,
$20,750,000, Received by Reparations Commissioners.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Publications Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., and the Post-Dispatch.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—The payment quota for the month of September by the Dawes reparation plan has been exceeded by Germany, according to Rufus Dawes.
"Germany has paid more than $3,000,000 gold marks ($20,750,000) for the month of September," he said, summing up the first month the plan has been in operation. "Just how much more than the quota Germany has paid he could not state definitely, because the first two payments were $2,400,000 each and the rest was in various forms."

Dawes has also given assurance that the first payment next month of more than $4,000,000 marks will be made promptly.
He also declared, despite German complaints, the new French import tax of 26 per cent on all German goods coming into France will not endanger the experts' plan because French imports from Germany are comparatively small.

President of Japanese Steamship Line to Resign to Hold Foreign Managers.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Sept. 26.—The dispute between the Nippon Yusen Kaisha (Japan Mail Steamship Co.) and its foreign officials has been settled, the officials withdrawing their resignation. It is understood that Yonejiro Ito, president of the company, whose policy led to the trouble, will resign.

The trouble, which has been of long standing, culminated last week when more than 800 resignations, including those of the foreign branch managers, who were disas-tified with the management of

WORSHIPERS ATTACK SLAYER

Man Killed During Festival Services in Synagogue.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Sept. 26.—While nearly 100 worshipers looked on Solomon Ostrow, 35 years old, walked into the Zion Synagogue during Jewish festival services here yesterday, and shot and killed Harry Denny, 54, and wounded a man and a woman in the struggle, that followed with the members of the congregation for possession of the revolver.

Escaping from the church, where many worshipers had badly beaten him and threatened to lynch him, Ostrow later was arrested by police.
In jail he said that the slaying was the result of business trouble between him and Denny, but refused to divulge its nature.

TEXAS TOWN HELD FOR DEBT

By the Associated Press.

BEAUMONT, Tex., Sept. 26.—

census of 1920, yesterday was ees named by Judge W. L. Egan was taken because the town failed rowed in 1919 when it was trying to be an incorporated municipality.

This judgment was given to Vernon
M. Branch of Wichita, Kan., on April 24, this year.

The trustees named by the court

Both Powers Agree to Accept Decision of a Com-
Lands Dispute.

GENEVA, Sept. 30.—Notable progress towards the settlement of the Mosul controversy was made in the Council of the League of Nations today when representatives of Turkey and Great Britain agreed to accept the appointment of a committee of three who will collect all the available information on the Mosul question and submit to the council their suggestions as to the best means of solving the problem. Rich oil lands are claimed by both countries.

Conciliatory speeches were made by Lord Parmoor of Great Britain and Ali Fethi Bey of Turkey, both of whom agreed to accept any decision concerning the frontier between Iraq and Turkey which the council might pronounce.

Today's developments before the council were regarded as increasing the possibility that Turkey soon would apply for membership in the league.

Concerning the recent reported skirmishes on the Iraq frontier between Turkish and Iraqi troops, the council urged that both the Turkish and British Governments maintain peace on both sides of the status quo frontier pending a definite settlement.

GERMAN PAYMENTS EXCEED AMOUNT DUE IN SEPTEMBER

More Than $3,000,000 Gold Marks,
$20,750,000, Received by Rep-
arations Commissioners.

Berlin, Sept. 30.—The payment quota set for the month of September by the Dawes reparation plan has been exceeded by Germany, according to Rufus Dawes, "Germany has paid more than $3,000,000 gold marks ($20,750,000) for the month of September," he said, summing up the first month the plan has been in operation. "Just how much more than the quota Germany has paid he could not state definitely, because the first two payments were 28,000,000 each and the rest was in various forms."

Dawes has also given assurance that the first payment next month of more than 14,000,000 marks will be made promptly.

He also declared, despite German complaints, the new French import tax of 26 per cent on all German goods coming into France will not endanger the export plan because French imports from Germany are comparatively small.

800 RECALL RESIGNATIONS AS HEAD OF COMPANY QUILTS

President of Japanese Steamship Line to Resign to Hold Foreign Management.

Tokyo, Sept. 30.—The dispute between the Nippon Yusen Kaisha (Japan Mail Steamship Co.) and its foreign officials has been settled, the officials withdrawing their resignation. It is understood that Yonejiro Ito, president of the company, whose policy led to the trouble, will resign.

The trouble, which has been of long standing, culminated last week when more than 800 resignations, including those of the foreign branch managers, who were dissatisfied with the management of President Ito, were forwarded to the head office.

Vice President Kurokawa and two other executives were authorized by the directors to negotiate a settlement.

DEEPEST TRENCH IN OCEAN FOUND OFF JAPANESE COAST

New "Deep," More Than Six Miles, Exceeds by 548 Feet Depth Off Philippines.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Japan, Sept. 2.—The lowest known point on the earth's crust, the deepest known trench in the ocean, lies about 145 miles southeast of Tokio. This discovery, made recently by the Japanese naval survey ship Manshu, has been announced by the navy authorities.

The new "deep" measures 32,636 feet, or more than six miles. It exceeds by 548 feet the hitherto greatest known ocean depth, the famous Marianne trench, which in 1899, found 32,088 feet off the east coast of the island of Mindanao in the Philippines.

The Manshu's "deep" apparently lies at the bottom of a precipitous declivity descending sharply about 100 miles from the southeastern coast of the main island of Japan. To the Japanese the first interest in the discovery lies in the seismic possibilities of this trench so near their coasts. The sharpness with which the ocean bed plunges a few miles from Japan is held by scientists to be a contributing factor to the severe earthquakes which visit this part of the country.

Why not get the Professional Services

FEW things are more vital to you than insurance. Insurance is the one big all-important factor that guarantees to you that the prosperity you enjoy today will also be yours tomorrow.

Why not, then consult your insurance agent in the same way in which you consult your doctor or lawyer. If he is a member of the Fire Underwriters' Association of St. Louis, he knows insurance in all its departments and all its forms. He is capable of applying the best type of insurance to your individual needs.

Fire insurance is only one form of protection that your insurance agency can sell you. Tell your Insurance Agent what property you have, and he'll tell you how to safeguard the investment that it represents.

Why not make it a rule to consult your insurance agent regularly.

Surely it is worth while to devote to the preservation of your property a small part of the energy and resourcefulness you displayed in acquiring it.

No business man or home owner can be expected to be expert in insurance matters. Time does not permit detailed study of forms and insurance methods. You need professional service. A letter, personal call or telephone message will put you in touch with organized recognized experts.

Fifty Cases of Smallpox in Texas Institution.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 30.—The

No Soap

Don't rub the life out of your clothes in order to rid them of dirt. Clean them, and protect them too by washing the soapless way. A bar of Stauffer's, some boiling hot water, and in a few minutes your washing is over. No soap necessary.

Every grocer sells Stauffer's. One bar of Stauffer's equals two of soap. Over a million and a half bars sold in St. Louis last year.

Excellent for washing dishes, cleaning the tubs, woodwork, floors, etc.

STAUFFER'S LAUNDRY TABLETS

State insane asylum here, where more than 50 cases of smallpox have been reported, one of them resulting fatally yesterday, was quarantined yesterday. All entrances to the asylum grounds, where buildings housing 2000 patients and several hundred attendants are located, were ordered closed.

Cases of smallpox at the asylum were diagnosed as chickenpox and not reported to City Health Officer Martin, he declared. He said that six weeks ago he was called by asylum authorities to investigate a case and pronounced it smallpox, but other physicians declared it to be chickenpox.

A Twice-Told Tale of a Great Dress Sale

Presenting a Most Unusual Event in a Most Unusual Way

What type of advertising do the patrons of the House of Sonnenfeld prefer? What style do they react to most favorably? Do they prefer sensational ads or the more refined announcements whose chief appeal is that of beauty? It is important that we solve this problem, because after all, we must deliver our message in a manner that will best convey its importance. Will a dignified statement and a refined illustration serve its purpose, or must we resort to the sensational? Here are two distinctly different types of appeal. Both announce the same event, and we hope that our patrons who attend Wednesday will express their preference, which will have a marked influence on our future advertising.

An Important Dress Occasion!

Wednesday We Present 800

Dresses of Distinction

At an Impressively Low Selling Price

The importance of this unusual occasion cannot be over-emphasized. In planning this event, it was our desire to present ultra-distinctive Dresses at a price that would quickly be recognized for its exceptional lowness, and that we have succeeded, will be apparent Wednesday, when you see them. Women who exercise good judgment in budgeting their apparel expenditures, can safely indulge their requirements in this sale.

Models for evening and daytime wear, some of captivating simplicity, others more elaborate in adornment; fashioned of exceptionally fine silk and cloth fabrics. Evening Dresses aglitter with beads or rhinestones; afternoon Frocks with tunics richly embroidered; beltless models; redingotes; tubular and flare skirts; smart scarf collars—in a word, everything in style, color and fabric that is certain to be acceptable to discriminating women. All sizes, including extra sizes up to 52.

200 Extra-Size Dresses Included

ALMOST at every turn our greater purchasing prestige, because of the newly enlarged store, manifests itself. This extraordinary Dress event is a concrete example. We planned a Dress Sale that would be the "talk of the town." A number of manufacturers were visited; the Dresses were selected with painstaking care at astonishing price concessions. And Wednesday the extent of our increased buying power will be demonstrated in this, the climax of Sonnenfeld Dress Sales.

LA FOLLETTE TEXT BOOK CITES JUDICIAL HISTORY

Declares Supreme Court Did Not Nullify Act of Congress for 48 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The La Follette Campaign Committee has challenged President Coolidge, E. H. Gary, Nicholas Murray Butler, John W. Davis and other opponents of the constitutional changes involved in the proposal to prevent the Supreme Court from nullifying acts of Congress unconstitutional, to meet them "in orderly debate."

The challenge is made in a section of the La Follette text book made public today. The independentists insist that the cries of "confiscation," "Bolshevism," "Communism" and "destruction of constitutional government" are a "smoke screen" put up by those who have no real arguments to make against the proposed change.

The book reviews the history of the Supreme Court's exercise of the power to nullify acts of Congress. It is asserted that the convention which formulated the Constitution defeated on four separate occasions the proposal to give the court this power. When the court first exercised the power, the book says in 1807, in the case of Marbury vs. Madison, "such a storm of popular protest arose that it did not dare to exercise its power again for 48 years." John Marshall is quoted as having proposed an appeal from the court to Congress, as now recommended by the La Follette forces.

Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt, the book asserts, "were denounced by the same reactionary elements that are now heaping abuse upon La Follette."

The book refers to the "divine right of Judges," and in order to check it still further propose election of Federal Judges for terms not exceeding 10 years.

HOW TO END WRINKLES AT HOME

You can remove wrinkles easily now. A simple treatment gently smooths them out and makes your face fresh, unlined.

You know how a piece of plaited fabric smooths out when it is damp and stretches taut and dries without any creases in it? This treatment works in much the same way. It is in the form of a cream, which is designed to penetrate to the "true" skin, where the wrinkles are formed. There it helps to soften and smooth out the wrinkles almost like magic. Your face is years younger-looking, even after the first few treatments.

This treatment is called Dumbone Wrinkle Cream. It is guaranteed, so you get your money back if you are not satisfied. Get a package of Dumbone Wrinkle Cream today for only a small price at any good drug or department store.

national co-operation. He asks that his country join with the farthest advanced plan to find a substitute for war and that in the League of Nations. The league may be criticized in its structure and what it has done, but its greatest achievement lies in the fact that 54 countries have subscribed to its rules and regulations. The league has settled problems after problems. Nothing in history approaches it. It is a crime that we are outside."

Everett Colby's Letter.

Everett Colby, in a letter to John W. Davis, after raking President Coolidge's foreign policy; Senator Pepper, who, he says, lives in "happy communion" with a machine in Philadelphia that is notorious for the manner in which it carries the principles of "normalcy," "common sense" and "practical achievement" to their complete fruition, and Secretary Hughes, "who rushes to the defense of Mr. Newberry," continues:

"I do not for a moment question the virtue of these men but their virtue of leadership. It is cold, negative, impassive, improving and aloof. In fact, to such an extent do they carry this policy of moral isolation and indifference to the conduct of others that I verily believe the Secretary Fall and his little band of acquisitive associates could have stolen the Capitol, the White House and the Washington Monument, without a protest from these men unless the Constitution or some provision of a statute made them responsible for the crime."

Savage Attack on Wilson.

"Think of what has happened under the leadership of men of this character. A savage, unfair, intemperate and profane campaign was conducted against Woodrow Wilson, an honorable Democrat. Benedict Crowell (former Assistant Secretary of War) was hounded and persecuted; spies were put on the trail of public officials; our wounded soldiers were robbed; public property was handled with greedy fingers; a sordid political atmosphere permeated our national life; and, perhaps worst of all, Herbert Hoover, the one man in the Republican party qualified by reputation, experience, sympathy and ability to represent our Government in the councils of the world, and to heal the angry wounds of war and hate, was bound and gagged and buried in a hole as deep as the cave of Azdullah."

"Because of these facts I see no other course open but to repudiate Republican leadership and to vote the national Democratic ticket. I am, of course, familiar with all the arguments against such a course. And it would be easier and more comfortable to remain silent. There is no possibility, however, of making the Republican party the progressive and liberal party of the country if those who want to see the party used as an instrument for advancing the cause of world peace and social justice permit cowardly and selfish leadership to carry the party away from the ideals and principles for which it was organized and to which it was dedicated by men of courage, rugged will and deep conviction."

"Believe You to Be a Man."

"I consider it a fortunate thing the Democratic party has nominated a man of your ability and character. I am voting for you because I believe you to be a man; because I believe you will fight for what is right and not simply give lip service to it, and because I believe you will keep your word."

More Soldiers' Paroles Favored. Special to the Post-Dispatch. LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 20.—Fifteen more former members of the 24th United States Infantry, convicted in connection with the Houston riots, were recommended for parole at the session of the parole board just completed here. It was announced today. Their names will be announced when they are released. The recommendation must be passed upon by the Department of Justice. Forty-nine of the 67 negro rioters sentenced here still remain in confinement.

Deaf Mute Tries to End Life.

Charles Crustus, 40 years old, of 4463 Margaretta avenue, a deaf mute, was taken from his home to city hospital at 2 p. m. yesterday in a serious condition, partly from strangulation and partly from asphyxiation. He left a farewell note to his family, which concluded that he had attempted to end his life because a man "wouldn't let me go to work for any other trunk company." Crustus is a trunk maker. He was found by his son, Herbert, unconscious in his bedroom, a rope tied to the bedpost and around his neck, and gas turned on at an unlighted jet.

NEGRO BOY, HIT BY AUTO, DIES

Robert Lucas Jr., 5, suffered fractured skull. Robert Lucas Jr., a negro, 5 years old, of 2324 Papin street, died at City Hospital No. 2 yesterday from a fractured skull suffered last Friday when struck by an automobile while crossing the street in front of 2305 Chouteau avenue. The automobile was driven by Clarence Loesche, 18, of 3639A Iowa avenue.

Found Dead at Foot of Stairway. Francis Goglek, 68 years old, of 2320 South Eleventh street, a widower, was found dead at the foot of a basement stairway at his home at 1 p. m. yesterday when his niece, Mrs. Marie Reichert, went to look for him after continued absence. Police reported Goglek apparently had started up the stairs and had fallen back when about half way up. An autopsy will be held to determine the cause of death, as the niece told police Goglek had been ill for two years. Home on Farlin Avenue Robbed. While Mrs. William Rick of 4340 Farlin avenue was in the basement of her home yesterday attending to the family washing, a sneak thief entered the upper portion of the home, taking $53 and jewelry valued at $400.

MAN, SHOT BY WIDOW

AS BURGLAR, IS DEAD

Son of Chariton County Farmer Told of Appointment Before Dying.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SUNNER, Mo., Sept. 30.—Willard Cowen, 21 years old, son of a prosperous farmer, is dead from an abdominal wound received here Thursday night, when Mrs. Nancy Humphress, a widow, fired at him through a window, mistaking him for a burglar, she said. Cowen, in a dying statement, said he stood at the window, by appointment, having been invited to the Humphress home. He died before he gave the name of the person who made the appointment.

Cowen died Friday night in the Christian Church Hospital in Kansas City. During the few hours preceding his death, hospital nurses were kept busy answering calls by a "girl" who called several times to ask after Cowen's condition. She would not give her name. Authorities here are investigating the origin of the calls.

Has Grown Daughters.

Mrs. Humphress has three grown daughters, one married and two in school. Clarence E. Brummall, Chariton County prosecutor, said he did not believe Mrs. Humphress suspected Cowen was a "Romeo" keeping a moonlight tryst with one of her daughters.

Brummall said he believed Mrs. Humphress herself invited the young man to her home. He would not divulge the reason for his suspicion.

Mrs. Humphress denies this. She said she was awakened by a sound at a west window. She arose, she explained, took a pistol and peered out. She saw a dim form through the pane. She fired.

Didn't Know He Was Hurt.

"I did not know until the next morning," she said, "that anyone had been hurt."

Cowen crawled away from the house and was found unconscious near by.

Mrs. Humphress was arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill on Friday, before Cowen's death. A charge of murder probably will be filed now, Brummall said.

CONGRESSMAN HILL PLEADSNOT GUILTY IN CIDER CASE

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 30.—Representative John Philip Hill today pleaded not guilty to an indictment returned by the Federal grand jury last week charging him with manufacturing and possessing wine and cider in violation of law.

He was released on $1000 bail pending trial, which will be held some time after Nov. 10.

In asking for an earlier trial counsel for Hill argued the case was one of national importance and should be decided before election day. Denying this request, Judge Soper said:

"The very reason you give for asking an early trial is the very reason I refuse it. This court can not be used for campaign purposes."

Hill's indictment followed closely upon a "cider party" given at his home. The cider, he said, had an alcoholic content of 2.75 per cent. His purpose, the Congressman says, is to obtain an interpretation of the phrase "non-intoxicating liquors" in section 29 of the Volstead act. He has declared that he will carry the case to the United States Supreme Court.

RECALLS PRAISE OF LA FOLLETTE
BY ROOSEVELTAmos Pinchot, in Letter to Wheeler, Tells of Conversations With Former President."NONE WITH BETTER ADMIRABLE RECORD"Also Quotes Senator Lodge
as Praising La Follette's Labors on War Revenue Measures.By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Amos Pinchot, New York lawyer and publicist, expects to start campaigning for the La Follette ticket in New Jersey within the next two weeks, or as soon as the illness of a friend whom he is attending, permits, he says in a letter to Senator Wheeler, made public today.

The letter expresses Pinchot's regret at his inability to accompany Senator Wheeler on his Western tour.

"I want to help and I propose to get into the game the first moment I am free," the letter continues.

Discussing the relations between Senator La Follette and Theodore Roosevelt, the letter adds:

"In 1912, I had two long interviews with Roosevelt about La Follette at the time the latter's candidacy for the Republican nomination was being supported by Roosevelt of New Jersey, Medill McCormick of Illinois, Gilson Gardner of Washington, and a score of other well-known Progressive leaders. At both of these talks, I urged the Colonel to make a public statement to the effect that he would not accept the nomination himself, and would so leave the field clear for La Follette. This he refused to do."

"But at both meetings he talked at great length about La Follette, and Mr. Roosevelt expressed himself very fully, saying that there was no man in public life who had a more admirable and consistent record for progressive work; and that his services as United States Senator were unique and of inestimable value."

"The Colonel especially emphasized his admiration for La Follette's extraordinary series of fights and filibusters to block raids on the public treasury and public domain. In the course of neither interview did Roosevelt utter a word about La Follette except in praise."

"As to the disagreement between Roosevelt and La Follette in regard to the European war, it is well known how bitterly the Colonel felt toward everyone who did not share his rather extreme views on the international questions. Nevertheless when history is written, and the people have had time to acquire a calm perspective, I suspect that La Follette's rather than Roosevelt's position will be vindicated."

"In this connection, also it should be remembered that La Follette's services during the war were immense. It was his political opponent, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who, not long ago, publicly stated that America was under deep obligation to La Follette for his extraordinary patient and successful labors on the Finance Committee in raising war revenues."

Pinchot recalls that Roosevelt had much the same idea of the war as La Follette now holds, even going so far as to propose making State court decisions subject to recall by popular vote. He wished later to extend this to the Federal Supreme Court decisions as well, Pinchot says.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS VIEW SLUMP IN ST. LOUIS VOTE AS BLOW TO STATE TICKET

Increase in Rural Districts, Taken With Falling Off in This City, Believed to Be Helpful to Democrats.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

An interesting field of political speculation is offered by the decreased registration in St. Louis for the November election, in comparison with the registration for the 1920 election, taken in connection with the election statistics of the State for the primary and general elections since women were admitted to suffrage in 1920. A lessening of the influence of the St. Louis vote on the State election is a trend indicated by the statistics.

In the four days of general registration in St. Louis, which ended Friday, there were 302,729 names of persons eligible to vote placed on the books. Later registration of absentees and invalids will increase this to approximately 304,450, which will be 10,560 less than the 1920 registration, a decrease conforming to an apathy noticeable in elections and primaries since the 1920 general election.

While election returns show that situation in St. Louis, they show the opposite for the State outside the city, there having been a consistent increase in the vote of the State as a whole. No comparison of the number of eligible voters is possible because there is no registration in rural Missouri, except in St. Louis County.

Negro Registration Figures.

An anticipated heavy registration of negro voters, due to the recent influx of negroes from Southern states, failed to materialize in the St. Louis registration, although the registration of this class of voters was 3697 more than in 1920. The registration of white voters, as given out today, was 13,469 fewer, by the same comparison.

Pre-registration polls, made by the Election Board, indicated there were 23,748 more negroes in St. Louis eligible to vote in 1924 than in 1920. Today's figures indicate that a little more than 10 per cent of this class took advantage of their eligibility.

This year 165,787 white men voted, against 2831 fewer than in 1920; and 102,867 white women voters, a falling off of 10,638. The negro registration was 21,372, an increase of 3372, while the negro women registration was 12,703, a gain of 495.

Lack of Interest by Women.

There appears little question that the St. Louis decrease is due to a lack of interest among women eligible to vote and the failure of the negro registration to increase materially. The explanation has been advanced that voting was a novelty in 1920 and that women were attracted by it. It was no novelty to them in 1924 and they did not go to the trouble of registering.

While this probably accounts for some of the decrease, and possibly very much of it, there were other factors entering into the registration. Politicians who watched with more or less care the registration and endeavored to get as many voters on the lists as possible, reported that apparently there was a lack of interest among the women, particularly in North and South St. Louis. The League of Women Voters was more successful, it is said, in the West End wards in getting the women to register.

Another element entering somewhat into the cause is a new section of the State Constitution limiting the right to vote to citizens and repealing the old provision under which an alien who had declared his intention to become a citizen and had his first naturalization papers was a qualified voter.

But it would appear more probable that the decrease is a reflection of public interest in the campaign. Four years ago at registration time the political fight over the League of Nations was the white heat, politicians having engaged for months in stirring up sentiment for and against. There was the natural dissatisfaction with the war administration. Voters generally had been aroused to a personal feeling which so far has not been appearing in the present campaign. Without the feeling of personal interest in the outcome of the election there would be no move to register.

It is not improbable that when there has been another month of campaigning many of those who failed to register will have been aroused and will want to vote, but will be prevented because they are not registered.

330,000 Anticipated.

Members of the board of Election Commissioners had elected a registration of approximately 330,000, basing their opinion on a 15,000 increase over 1920 by reports of the Census Bureau that the estimated population increase since 1920 had been 39,801.

was impossible because of a change in ward boundary lines since the 1920 registration.

Republican party leaders privately express considerable concern over the political trend in St. Louis, that they have feared that St. Louis will be lost to the Republican party in election, the size of the majority being too large to place that within the realm of probability, but because of the effect on State elections. The big St. Louis Republican plurality has saved the party ticket in the State number of times.

Now they observe a decrease in the St. Louis vote, which must be construed as indicating a certain decrease in the Republican plurality, and at the same time the vote out in the State is increasing.

Statistics are dry reading, but for the benefit of those who in election periods enjoy speculation on the outcome, and attempt to reach a decision in their own minds in the light of statistics of previous elections, the following for St. Louis are given:

1916 Primary—Registration, 119,744; total vote, 73,458, being 61.4 per cent of the registration. The Republican vote was 45,215, or 37.7 per cent of the total registration, and the Democratic vote, 28,243, or 23.3 per cent of the registration. REGISTRATION OF VOTERS IN THE COUNTY BEGINS; TO CONTINUE FOR THREE DAYS

All St. Louis County voters must register either today, tomorrow or Thursday, to vote at the coming presidential election or at any election in the next four years. The former registration, made last January, is void.

The 123 precinct polling places in the county will be open these three days from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Location of the polling places and the boundaries of the precincts were published in the Post-Dispatch recently for the guidance of voters.

Only slightly more than half the qualified voters registered in January. There is no provision in the county for later registration of voters or persons unable to register now because of illness.

can vote was 23,531, or 34.6 per cent, while the increase in the Democratic vote was 23.9 per cent. The failure of the Democrats to increase their vote generally their general election vote may probably be ascribed to the bitter Reed-Long fight for the senatorship that year, bringing out a much larger Democratic primary vote than normal, and to the fact that many Republicans voted in the Democratic primary that year.

1924 Primary—Registration 259,793; total vote, 128,600, or 49 per cent of the total registration. The Republican vote was 82,151, or 31.6 per cent of the registration, and the Democratic vote, 46,449, or 17.8 per cent of the registration. The Republican vote was 82,151, or 31.6 per cent of the registration, and the Democratic vote, 46,449, or 17.8 per cent of the registration.

From a purely speculative standpoint, the statistician might argue from these figures that the average shows that the Republicans in the four general elections have cast 44.3 per cent of the registered vote and the Democrats 38.5 per cent, and that on those figures and taking the estimated registration as 294,450 the Republicans in the four general elections have cast 44.3 per cent of the registered vote and the Democrats 38.5 per cent.

Of course one cannot figure that way for many reasons. One is that the registration of the primary party polls a considerable larger proportion of the registered vote than in off years, and another is that there is no basis from which to figure the strength of the party in the general election. Leaving that out of consideration, and figuring the average percentage of registered voters in the four general elections, the result would appear to be on this year's estimated registration, as 50 per cent, or 152,225 for the Republicans, and 38.1 per cent, or 115,000 for the Democrats. But, of course that is fully as far off, as there is no indication of a landslide such as there was in 1920.

It will be noticed that the total vote in St. Louis increased 74.7 per cent from the presidential election of 1916 to that of 1920, 92.3 per cent from the off-year election of 1918 to that of 1922, and the St. Louis primary vote 60.4 per cent from the primary vote in 1920 to that of 1924.

The figures for similar period for the State as a whole show an increase of 69.4 per cent from 1916 to 1920, 68.2 per cent from 1918 to 1922, and 73.2 per cent from the primary of 1920 to that of 1924.

In comparison with the St. Louis figures these show that there has been a decrease in the proportion of the total vote cast by the Republican party in the State, and an increase in the rural vote, on which the Democrats rely.

As indicative possibly of something of the trend in sentiment out over the primary vote, the organization of the city, and opening an active campaign, more active than any third party campaign in St. Louis except that of the Roosevelt party in 1912.

BAVARIAN SOCIETY GOES ON RECORD FOR LA FOLLETTE

Resolution Adopted Takes Issue With Westliche Post Statement That Denied Support of Senator.

"OUR RIGHTS HAVE BEEN DISREGARDED"

Six Hundred Members of Organization Are Asked to Use Influence for Independent Ticket.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

The tendency of the Republican organization to discount the La Follette strength among voters of German origin in St. Louis encountered something of a check Sunday afternoon, when the Bavarian Society of St. Louis, which has a membership of 600, adopted resolutions asking its members to vote the La Follette ticket and to use their influence in the election.

The resolutions were an outgrowth of a lengthy discussion of the presidential campaign, in which the Westliche Post, the St. Louis German newspaper which is supporting the Republican ticket, came in for censure from the members because of a statement that few of the members of the society were favorable to the La Follette candidacy, which was published Sept. 1, the day of the society's annual picnic, to which its officers had invited Walter Thomas Mills, a La Follette speaker.

Text of Resolution.

As expressed in its resolution, the attitude of the society is: "We are in the midst of a presidential campaign, and problems of most vital import present themselves for solution to our citizens, as Americans and as Germans. Our experience for many years has convinced us that our rights as men and citizens have been disregarded by the men who are now in power. We are in public office, and that promises made before elections were mere tricks to catch votes."

"On Sept. 1, statements were published in our local German papers, the Westliche Post, which contained the false assertion that Senator Robert M. La Follette did not have many friends among the members of the St. Louis Bavarian Society, and that the society was not in favor of his candidacy for the presidency of the United States."

"Resolved, That we hereby sanction the action of our officers and members of the Committee on Arrangements for inviting a La Follette speaker for our Labor day festival; and be it further Resolved, That the St. Louis Bavarian Society, representing about 600 members, assembled in monthly meeting this 28th of September, hereby decides that in our honest opinion the interests of the people and the welfare of the country can best be protected and safeguarded by the election of Senators La Follette and Wheeler as President and Vice President of the United States; be it further Resolved, That we ask our members and friends to act in accordance with the letter and spirit of this resolution."

Active Campaign.

The action of the society came at a time when the La Follette organization in St. Louis was perfecting a systematic ward organization throughout the city, and opening an active campaign, more active than any third party campaign in St. Louis except that of the Roosevelt party in 1912.

Speakers for whom dates have already been fixed include Senator Wheeler, Senator La Follette, Mrs. Marie Glenn Plumb and Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch of New York. Senator La Follette will speak in St. Louis Oct. 13 and Senator Wheeler Oct. 24.

Mrs. Plumb will address 10 or 12 meetings in St. Louis, her first appearance to be at Eagles' Hall, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 12. This will be followed during that week by addresses before the South Side Ethical Society, the Town Club, the La Follette-Wheeler Women's Club of South St. Louis, the "Committee of 48-ers," and the Central Trades and Labor Union.

Mrs. Blatch will speak at Eagles' Hall Sunday afternoon, Oct. 26, and after that will deliver one or more speeches each day in St. Louis until Nov. 2.

Socialist Labor Vice-Presidential Nominee Here Tomorrow.

LA FOLLETTE ELECTORS IN MISSOURI BY PETITION

Names Will Be Filed as Precinctary Measure Today—Already Filed by Convention.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 30.—The Liberal party (La Follette) of Missouri today notified the Secretary of State that petitions were filed during the day to place the party presidential electors on the ballot for the November election, this being the third filing of the electoral ticket by that party. In order to avoid possible legal complications that might keep the electors from the ballot, the Executive Committee of the Liberal party is utilizing every possible means of filing the ticket. The party first held a party convention the latter part of August, nominated electors, and the convention filed the ticket. Next the State Committee of the Liberal party filed the same set of electors, under the State law permitting political committees to file electors in a ticket. As a third step, petitions for placing the electors on the ballot were circulated in all 15 congressional districts. The Socialist party, which endorsed the candidacy of La Follette, recently filed the list of presidential electors selected by the Liberal party. The Attorney-General has ruled that under existing court decisions two parties may file the same electors.

Politics in Washington

Republican Concern Over California Due to Realization That as Situation Now Stands, Coolidge Lacks Enough Votes to Win—If Re-elected, He Is Expected to Pick New Cabinet.

By CHARLES MICHELSON.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World. WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—When Chairman Shaver of the Democratic National Committee made the mild estimate that the indicated vote for La Follette shows that if the election were held in the present state of the public mind it would go into Congress, he was declared by the Republican spokesmen that the only way to save the situation is for everybody to forget partnership and vote for Coolidge.

Now these same Republican leaders are filling the atmosphere with their alarmed cries that the country is facing the danger of a mistake in the electoral college and that the only way to save the situation is for everybody to forget partnership and vote for Coolidge.

Actually the situation points to an election in Congress as the most probable outcome of the November balloting, and neither the Republican clamor that La Follette's strength is waning nor the Democratic insistence that John W. Davis is constantly gaining and that his impetus will carry him to victory at the polls alters the likelihood of the existing condition continuing. Perhaps the only possibility of a change results in the presentation by the Democrats that rudimentary political arithmetic shows that Mr. Coolidge cannot get 266 votes and therefore the only refuge for those frightened at what might happen in Congress is to swing to Davis.

It is the realization of this that has caused the intense agitation of Republicans at the development of a big La Follette trend in California, an agitation quite disproportionate to the 13 votes of the Golden State. The answer is that Mr. Coolidge cannot afford to disregard anything. He must carry the whole line of what are known as Republican states or he is lost, and different from Mr. Davis, he has only a single shot at the target.

Real Danger to G. O. P.

Is Condition of Normalcy.

Another way of saying this same thing is that the danger to the Republicans in this campaign is normalcy. That is, if the election takes an average course; if the Democrats carry the states normally, or even approximately so, the Republicans will lose. It would take another landslide like that which brought in Harding to win for the Republicans, considering the defections to La Follette.

The political seismograph gives no such readings. Even the straw votes, though they show an apparently phenomenal trend to Coolidge, point rather negatively, for it is not enough that Coolidge should carry Republican states as well. While New York and Illinois and Ohio, for example, are indispensable for his victory, he must carry at least one of the two like Oklahoma, Kentucky, Tennessee and Maryland, or Minnesota and one or both Dakotas.

There have been so many tables presented that it is hardly worth while offering another. However, Illinois towns in the immediate St. Louis territory.

On arrival he will be taken to Hotel Statler, where he will be the guest of the reception committee at dinner, the dinner to be followed by a reception. He will speak Thursday in Granite City; Friday evening at Eagles' Hall, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, Saturday in Benton, Ill.; Sunday in Belleville and East St. Louis, and Monday in Collinsville. Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock he will deliver a radio address from KSD studio.

DAVIS PLANS STRENUOUS TOUR TO WIN NEW YORK

Beginning Monday, He Will Invade Upstate Territory, Returning After Second Western Trip.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—With New York State decided upon as the chief battleground of the presidential campaign, John W. Davis today approved a speaking program drafted by his "board of strategy" for the remainder of the campaign.

The Democratic National Committee plans to bring a large number of prominent speakers into the Empire State, and the presidential nominee on two speaking tours and give fullest co-operation to Gov. "Al" Smith in the latter's fight for re-election.

The Democratic nominee will make his first New York tour next Monday, spending three days upstate. His second appearance will come on his return from another Western tour and the closing days of the campaign will find Davis going throughout Greater New York. Thursday night at Madison Square he will share the spotlight with Gov. Smith.

Davis spent today resting at his Locust Valley (L. I.) home. He will return to New York late this afternoon to board his special train tonight to fill two engagements in Maryland, at Frederick and Baltimore. He will spend Thursday in New York and then make a series of speeches in New Jersey Friday, going to Providence to open his New England campaign Saturday night.

After his second Western tour, which starts Monday, Davis will devote the last week of October to a New England drive.

It is difficult to make the point plain that Mr. Coolidge cannot win with any ordinary Republican tide without a table. So here goes once more: Suppose we give Coolidge all of New England, though the Democrats have hopes of Rhode Island and New Hampshire, and all the middle states, though the Democrats should carry either New Jersey or Delaware, and possibly both. New England 44 votes, middle states 100 votes, Ohio and Illinois 53 votes, total 197 votes.

Throw in for good measure Indiana, which the Democrats think they are sure of, and Kansas, where they think they have a chance, Michigan and California, both of which La Follette is claiming, and still Mr. Coolidge shows 16 votes short of an electoral college majority. Just to emphasize the point, give him in addition to all this Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada and Wyoming, and even then he has not attained 266 votes and certainly that includes all that is loose.

In the above enumeration there are half a dozen states that are more likely to go to Davis or La Follette than to Coolidge, so the extent to which he would have to trench on their territory to do him any good may be appreciated.

Stone Likely to Hold Place; Others May Go.

No matter who wins the election it is going to be a strange political lineup after March 4. Davis' election would, of course, mean a complete turnover, but a change from the present forecast in the event of Coolidge succeeding himself is hardly less complete.

There are those who say that the only present member of the Cabinet who is likely to hold his place if Coolidge gets another term is Attorney-General Stone. He was appointed by Coolidge, as was Wilbur, all the others being in inheritance. Secretary of the Navy Wilbur has disqualified himself for membership in Coolidge's second Cabinet by his California speeches and the Denver speech that was only headed off by the accident of Coolidge's succeeding himself.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REPLYING to letter of "Kind O' Old-fashioned" headed, "What Are the Schools Teaching?"

When children are kept home nights off of the streets and out of the picture shows and taught as "Kind O' Old-fashioned" did his sister, then we will not have so many failures in school and the children will know what they are supposed to know in their respective grades.

What the next generation is to be depends upon the PARENTS of this country. If the parents do not teach the children, if they are not kept off the streets and out of the alleys, the next generation will be even worse than this one. What this country is to be in the future depends upon the home and the parent, for they go further toward making our citizens than all the schools and churches in the land.

Give us more home in the full sense of the word, and give us real parents who keep their children in at night and gather them around their side and teach them not only in literary subjects, but how to be respectable law-abiding Christian citizens.

OLDFASHIONED TOO.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. LOUIS evening paper recently published an article about poisons under the head, "Poison has been favoring its murder method down through ages," etc. There seems to be no sane reason for giving the matter of murder by poisons much or any publicity, for the reason that some demented or criminally inclined person may be induced to commit a crime. Such articles are not conducive to the prevention of murder. One paragraph in it reads as follows: "Now (referring to poisons) they may easily be obtained at any drug store. Poisoned candy is the most frequent mode of administration."

It is a fact that the writer of the item unintentionally maligns the druggists of our city and country or stated a positive untruth, since nearly every druggist declines to sell poisons and particularly arsenic, strychnine and other powerful poisons. It is unfair to druggists to publish such items as were published in this St. Louis paper. It is hoped that the public will take the expressed remarks about purchasing poisons with a grain of salt. It is also hoped that the editorial section of that St. Louis paper will censor such untrue and nonsensical items in the future.

ST. LOUIS DRUGGIST.

LOOKED LIKE FAVORITISM. A NOTHER criminal, Joseph S. Carr, has gone to the penitentiary, traveling in state, in a drawing room, not as a poor man would be treated, but accompanied by his friends and business associates whom he financed with money belonging to the depositors of the bank he had wrecked. What a fallacy is modern justice—the adored god: The dollar conquers once more.

To begin with, the criminal was not arrested and put in jail, as should have been done. He was allowed to present himself, when so disposed, and was immediately released, upon getting several signatures to a bond previously arranged for.

At this writing the depositors have received about 70 per cent of their deposits. The remaining 30 per cent they are to get—maybe.

It was unjust enough to give him a minimum sentence, but by all means let him serve his full time.

AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION. IN YOUR editorial, "Roosevelt, Father and Son," you say: "Probably the greatest safeguard to the Constitution is the arduous, laborious and difficult method prescribed by the founders for amending it."

As it seems to me, neither this view nor that of those progressives who pledged themselves "to provide a more easy and expeditious method of amending the Federal Constitution," is the important one. Infinitely more important than the ease or difficulty of amending the organic law of the land is the assurance that when so amended it shall rest on the eternal principle of justice, as in the Declaration of Independence. Vice Governments "derive their just powers from the consent of the governed." This consent, except through passive acquiescence, has never been obtained. And the only manner in which it can be obtained is by popular election. I am confident that if the last four amendments had been submitted to the people one only could have been ratified—to elect U. S. Senators by popular vote.

There is nothing in our experience in Missouri to alarm those who feel, as you do, that it should be made difficult to amend. It is almost impossible to amend the Missouri State Constitution. Indeed, there is no cause for alarm for anyone who believes in the great principles of government discovered by the founders of this, the greatest of republics.

THE LATEST FALL EXPOSE.

The full extent of Albert B. Fall's corrupt operations as Secretary of the Interior is not known, but the latest revelation as to his leasing of Indian lands for private exploitation, as told in the Sunday Post-Dispatch, makes it clear that Teapot Dome and Elk Hills were only items in this official's bill of betrayal. Nor are all the sinister interests to whom Fall bartered away properties of which he was the trustee yet known. The public has met Doheny and Sinclair and is familiar, in a way, with the price they paid Fall for their ill-gotten concessions, but the Post-Dispatch has introduced another character, a mysterious Mr. E. M. Harrison, whose identity is yet to be established, and whose payments, if any, to Fall, are properly a subject for public curiosity and ought to be a subject for relentless official investigation.

As told by the Post-Dispatch, the cupidity of the oil interests focused on the Navajo reservation because of surveys made by geologists in 1921 and their conclusion that the land contained large oil deposits. But the prize was tantalizingly beyond their reach. Those Indian lands were sacred. They were protected from assault by the Government's decree. How could avarice scale, or break down, or burrow under, such a barrier? The malign ingenuity of Fall solved the difficulty.

There are three classes of Indian lands: those arranged by treaty between the Indians and the Government; those created by acts of Congress, and, third, those established by executive order. By his crooked reasoning Fall declared that an executive order could be revoked by an executive order. As it happened that the Navajo reservation had, in part, been established by executive order, the obstacle in that instance was removed. That was one of Fall's methods for justifying his criminality. Another method was his distortion of the leasing act of 1920, which he construed as opening those lands to exploitation, inasmuch as "the provisions of the law do not expressly include Indian reservations among the classes of land excepted from its provisions." Fall further justified his action with the contention that, since reservations created by executive order were essentially temporary and could at any time be withdrawn and restored to the public domain by the same authority, it obviously followed that only the use and occupancy of the surface of the land were bestowed upon the Indians, the subsoil rights and mineral wealth remaining in the possession of the Government, to be administered as might be decided upon.

With the devious mental processes of Fall the public may not especially be concerned, but as disclosed by the Post-Dispatch they do portray vividly the utter infamy of this degraded ex-Cabinet officer. And the fact that the Government is now trying by law to invalidate those leases and retrieve for the Indians the property which Fall and the sinister interests have stolen from them is, of course, a necessary sequence. The point that must amaze the public is: How could Fall, as a member of the Cabinet, as one of the high counselors of the administration, have conducted such an orgy of bold, ruthless, lawless betrayal with never a protest from his associates? How is the conduct of Fall's Cabinet associates to be justified? Were they ignorant of such deliberate, contrived and colossal dishonesty, and if they were can ignorance be pleaded as an excuse? If not ignorant, how may their acquiescence in this villainous record be characterized?

And what of Standard Oil? The name of Standard Oil is included in the Fall roster from the fact that the mysterious E. M. Harrison apparently acted as that company's agent. In any event, he turned his Navajo lease over to the Midwest Oil Co., a subsidiary of the Standard of Indiana, which later assigned it to another subsidiary. What favors, if any, did Standard Oil extend to Fall in exchange for this concession? Whom did Standard employ to carry a black satchel to Washington, after the known Doheny method, or what bonds and other valuable considerations may have been passed by Standard to Fall, after the circuitous custom of Sinclair?

There is still another question which the public will ask, and Gen. Dawes, Mr. Coolidge's running mate, is peculiarly obligated to answer. Mr. Dawes insists that the American people are sick of politicians, and from the context of his remarks he has in mind politicians of the La Follette stripe. Now, it happens that La Follette opposed the leasing act in which Fall found authority for his plundering raids. Indeed, La Follette predicted what has come to pass, namely, that the act would open the door for huge grabs of public resources by private monopolies.

Well, what kind of politicians are the American people sick of? Is it the La Follette type, mistaken in some of its plans for remedying conditions but violently honest and crusadingly determined to serve the public welfare? Or are the American people sick of the kind of politician that has been in control of things during the present administration?

Dawes derides and denounces the La Follettes with his fluent, sulphuric damns, but as yet no word of censure has fallen from his lips upon the ghastly embezzlement of Forbes, the shocking story of Daugherty or the treason of Fall. And the administration, from Mr. Coolidge down, seems complacently in accord with Mr. Dawes' attitude.

What kind of politics, then, and what kind of politicians do Mr. Dawes and his associates approve?

CURTAILMENT OF CRIME NEWS.

The retail merchants of the Murphysboro (Ill.) Chamber of Commerce have the right idea in seeking a curtailment of Southern Illinois crime news in the local and metropolitan papers. There is too much Southern Illinois crime news in the papers. There is not the least doubt in the world about that. Curtailment is highly desirable.

But in the matter of method these retail merchants have the wrong idea. They seek curtailment of crime news without curtailment of crime. They would have the editors of newspapers close their eyes and ears and columns to the daily developments in "Bloody Williamson" and other news centers and let on that all is peaceful when there is no peace.

That, of course, would not be true or honest, but these merchants think it would help business. For, as they point out, publicity of the other sort, telling the truth, reflects upon the majority of the people, who are law-abiding.

It is true that a community suffers from crimes and the news of crimes committed in its borders. It lays itself open to the charge of condoning crime if it tries to cover up its crime. It practices false pretense if it proclaims peace when there is no peace.

There is only one way to curtail crime news in Southern Illinois or anywhere else, and that is by curtailing crime.

GOV. HYDE'S INCONSISTENCY.

In his new zeal to get Dr. Nelson, the Democratic candidate for Governor, to repudiate the Ku Klux Klan in language that will be satisfactory to him, Gov. Hyde not only misrepresents Dr. Nelson's utterances, but even attempts to reflect on the sincerity of John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate for the presidency. He overlooks some points that an ardent antiskin crusader ought not to miss in an effort to put candidates on record and the Klan out of politics.

The Governor ignores the public statement of Dr. Nelson in which he said not only that he was not a member of the Klan but had never been a member of the Klan; in short, he made a false statement about Dr. Nelson. He emphasizes an "if" in the sweeping denunciation of the Klan and all similar organizations by Mr. Davis. We have referred to the Klan activities of Gov. Hyde's appointee and political adviser, Heber Nations, former Labor Commissioner. We have referred to Harry Woodruff's giving permission to hold a secret Klan meeting in the Capitol. Mr. Woodruff was the appointee of the Board of Permanent Seat of Government, of which Gov. Hyde is the head. So that the Governor's own Klan record is pretty well known.

Prof. Baker, Gov. Hyde's candidate for Governor, answered "Yes" to a question asked by a negro in a St. Louis meeting—"Do you consider the Klan a menace to the people and the Constitution of the country?" But his language in dealing with the Klan has not been as strong as the language of Mr. Davis quoted by Dr. Nelson. He is on record as having said, referring to the Klan, that he "does not approve of any organization which works in secret and in the dark." Baker was on the list of candidates approved by the Klan which was distributed in Kansas City. Why does not Gov. Hyde force Prof. Baker to be more emphatic?

As a new zealot in the antiskin crusade, what has Gov. Hyde to say about President Coolidge, who has not denounced the Klan even with an "if"? He has never mentioned the Klan. He has been challenged several times, notably by Mr. Davis, to declare himself, but has remained silent.

If there is any consistency or sincerity in Gov. Hyde's effort to get Dr. Nelson to be more violent in his repudiation of the Klan, he certainly should try to get his presidential candidate, Mr. Coolidge, to say something about the Klan. How can he damn Dr. Nelson for not saying enough, and praise and support Mr. Coolidge, who says nothing?

THE ROBISON PROMOTION.

The administration apparently is determined not to let the public forget the oil scandal. How else can be construed the President's approval of the recommended promotion of John Keeler Robison to the rank of Rear Admiral? As head of the Bureau of Engineering Robison not only knew and approved the secret transactions by which the oil reserves were delivered to Doheny and Sinclair, but he is credited with originating the plan for circumventing the purpose of Congress by which the construction of tanks was to be paid for with oil. His department throughout was characterized by a strange disregard for the consequences as regards the navy's future fuel supply.

Had Robison been in the employ of the oil magnates, instead of a naval officer in a departmental position of high governmental trust and responsibility, he could hardly have served the interests of the former more effectually and faithfully.

This is the summary of Robison's activities by Senator Walsh of Montana, who surely speaks with authority and whose fairness and admirable freedom from partisan malice Republican papers and spokesmen have gratefully acknowledged. But Senator Walsh will oppose Robison's promotion and in doing so he cannot be charged with political animus. He can oppose it on numerous grounds: That it is contrary to sound public policy; that it is unfair to deserving officers with unclouded records; that, finally, it is an affront to public sentiment. Further, Senator Walsh is resolved, if the Robison promotion is submitted to the Senate, to ascertain just how Robison, the one-time superior officer of the younger Doheny and "school" in what he knew about the reserves by (the elder) Doheny, came to be appointed head of the Engineering Bureau.

Under the circumstances this inquiry is justified. And in the hands of Senator Walsh the public knows that the inquiry will be conducted ably and fearlessly.

Andrew Mellon may be a great Secretary of the Treasury, but it is as a metallurgist that he really shines. See how he has turned aluminum into gold.

WHEN HEAT IS NEEDED.

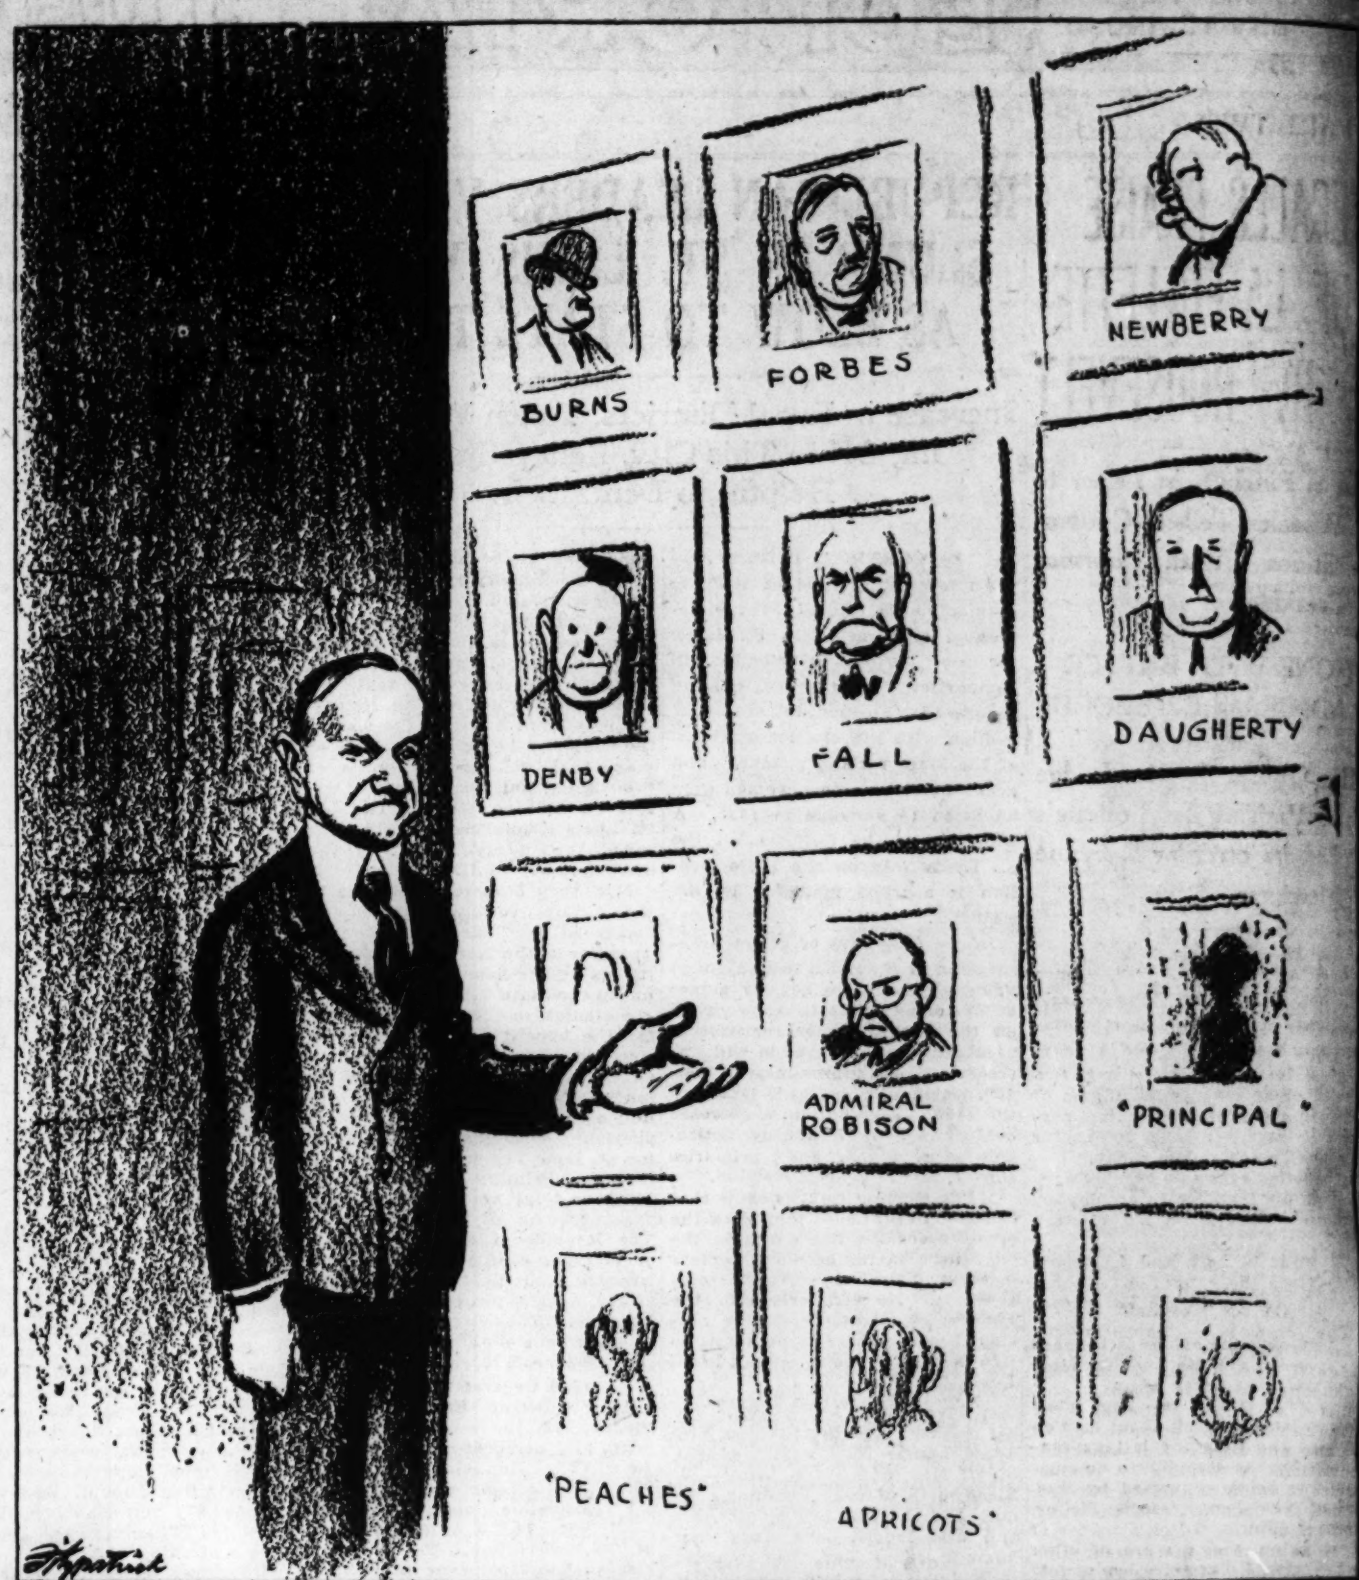

Early in September Chicago suffered from a spell of such cold weather that, after hundreds of tenants had complained of unheated apartments, the Health Commissioner warned landlords that the defeat of a heating ordinance did not absolve them from the duty of maintaining heat in flats, apartments and hotels during spells of low temperature. He pointed out that a jury awarded $15,000 damages to the widow of a tenant who died from pneumonia during such a spell.

St. Louis has had a heating ordinance for apartments and hotels since early in 1920. It provides that heat is to be furnished from Oct. 1 to May 15, the minimum temperature being 70 degrees during the day and 65 at night. We also have an ordinance prescribing that street cars must be heated whenever the outside temperature falls to 40 degrees or lower.

The present low temperature is a reminder that the need of artificial heat cannot be fixed by dates. Heat should be provided before Oct. 1, if tenants who rely upon such heat are suffering for the lack of it. And, as the Chicago Health Commissioner pointed out, they have a good case in court if neglect to provide such heat results in sickness or death.

As for the street cars, the present ordinance is ridiculous. Every autumn street car passengers must wait and suffer until the outside temperature falls to within eight degrees of freezing. Of course the inside temperature is about the same, and the constant opening and closing of doors makes for added discomfort.

If we are to have any heating laws they should be based on common sense and should be enforced. The public can have such laws if they will demand them.

THE WONDER IS NOT THAT THIS (CORRUPTION) WAS SO MUCH OR SO MANY (CORRUPTIONISTS), RATHER THAT IT HAS BEEN SO LITTLE AND SO FEW. —President Coolidge

HYMN OF HATE.

BY nature I lean to the gentle and kind;
I would not do harm to the mouse or the flea;
To grief or sorrow I'll never be blind,
And the least sign of sorrow is painful to me;
But there's one pest I hate—he makes me see red;
I would boil him with oil or suspend him
on hooks;
I would out-Nero Nero to see him die—
The pest who makes notes in the La-
brary books.

I have read of some crimes that have made me turn pale;
I have heard of the misdeeds of Morgan and Kidd;
I know that split blood can tell many a tale,
And I've read nearly all of what Jesse James did.
In the course of my life I have heard quite a lot Of pirates and such like and other great crooks;
But there's one crook I know who is not hung or shot—
The pest who makes notes in the La-
brary books.

I'd fain be a high brow; I'd fain read the deep;
A treatise on Einstein would fill me with joy;
The reading of light stuff will put me to sleep,
And with less than old Plato my fancy will cloy;
But I cannot be wise, for my efforts are vain,
So I'll stick to cheap verse, with its ranting of brooks;
For studying science, all is made plain,
By pests who make notes in the Library books.

understood by many, but most married men will feel that he is still fortunate if his wife understands him.

which must make the elder Roosevelt re-

After all, honesty is the best policy. The Republicans fought the League of Nations for a dishonest reason. They have in mind the votes of all those related to the losing and the aggrieved side of the great war. It did for the moment, and the party was triumphant. Now great numbers of German-Americans, who like Senator La Follette's vote against the League, are going over to the Republican party. This leaves the Republicans in a terrible plight in states such as Missouri, which they have about as much chance of carrying as the Democrats had against their dishonest practices of 1920.
Nor is this all; Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University, who was one of the famous 31 sophists of 1920, has abandoned the Republican party and come out for Mr. Davis because he cannot continue to stultify his conscience in the old make-believe about world peace. The Republican campaign from this on ought to be a good deal like the book of Jeremiah.

CROOKED STREETS.
I do not want a city ready made,
With arching gates and even boulevards;
With buildings all correct in structural designs,
An architecture pure and columnar—
I do not want a town so staid.

I'd rather have a city smoke-begrimed,
Its dwellings antiquated, tumble-down;
With crooked lanes that lead to ugly streets,
Where people toll and struggle to survive—
Much rather than a city beauty-rhymed.

I'd rather straighten out a crooked street,
And help rebuild an ugly tract,
Than waken to a world of opulences With paradise avenues and poems done in stone.

I'd rather live where life and labor meet.

JOSEPHINE RYAN.

The MIRROR OF PUBLIC OPINION

HEROES OF TEAPOT DOME.

From the New York World.

ADMIRAL ROBISON is on the list for promotion. A naval board chosen by Secretary Wilbur has passed by other names to pick out Robison for special honor.

Who is Admiral Robison? Senator Walsh calls him "The man who furnished the brains of the Navy Department" in the oil-lease scandals. Robison took the witness stand before the Senate committee on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 last year and testified to the part he had played in the transaction.

He was the man, he said, who had brought Doheny into the affair. There had been a certain young man—Robison described him as "a friend of mine"—who had been conveniently on the spot when he was needed. His name? Edward L. Doheny Jr.—the Edward L. Doheny Jr. who was later to bring $100,000 to Washington in a black satchel for Albert B. Fall.

Robison discussed the oil reserves with this young man. He said that the danger of drainage worried him. "Talk to your dad, won't you?" he suggested. So young
Mr. Doheny put it up to father.

And father? Father was in Washington in no time at all. "I got hold of the oil man," reported Robison, "and I appealed to him as a Californian." That elicited from Doheny Sr. was no man to turn a deaf ear to an appeal which was calculated to net him (so he himself testified) the neat little profit of $100,000,000.

A hundred million? Possibly more. Robison had no figures to give the Senate.
But when the committee took up the similar disposal of Teapot Dome and asked him if it was not true that the administration had signed leases that would cost the navy 15 barrels of oil in every 16 he admitted (hearings, page 933) that this was just what happened.

Other naval officers might object that a bargain so disastrous struck a body blow at the American navy. Not Robison. From first to last, alone among the chief officers of the navy, he defended the leases, despite his unconvincing figure.

Now he reaps the reward of faithful service.
Robison recommended for promotion.
Young Roosevelt nominated for Governor of New York.

Isn't it about time that the Republican party paid its respects to Edwin Denby?

NAVAL APPROPRIATIONS.
From the Springfield Republican.

THE President has a hard nut to crack in the naval appropriations to be considered by Congress. There are two choices; neither is ideal. If Director Lord of the navy get bureau and the general principle of economy which he has been directed to apply are upheld, the navy cannot begin the task of recovering the relative strength of signed it by the Washington treaty. But that case it will probably fail further to hind instead of recovering lost ground.

On the other hand, a determined effort made to bring the navy up to strength, the principle of reduced appropriations will have to be scrapped, so far as the Navy Department is concerned. The pressure will then increase for other appropriations in favor of other departments.

TWO MILLIONS FOR DISABLED VETERANS

Lotta Crabtree, Actress, in Will Also Provides Aid for Several Forms of Charity.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—The $4,000-000 estate which Miss Lotta Crabtree acquired in a career of song and dance, real estate investment and theater, goes to charity under the terms of her will, which was filed yesterday, and half of the sum goes to form a trust fund for World War disabled and their dependents. Setting aside only nominal sums for relatives, the actress left hundreds of thousands for dumb animals, needy worthies and actresses, hospital discharged sailors and the residue to graduates of Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The will establishes a trust fund of $2,000,000 for the World War disabled and the service of the United States during the World War who were disabled, maimed, wounded or sick, and extends assistance also to their dependents.

"I thoroughly believe that in the making of this particular trust I have selected the noblest and most deserving philanthropy to which my estate can be put," the testatrix says in the will.

"I have great pride and admiration for the heroic and patriotic service rendered by our soldiers, sailors and women who were in the service of the United States during the late World War, and I have given great consideration to them and the suffering that has come to them in the performance of their duties and to the hardships and difficulties which they have continued to suffer in years to come."

"I am fully aware of the fact that they can never receive adequate compensation and reward for what they have helped to accomplish for the honor and well being of their country and mankind."

Aid for Hospitalized.
The trustees—Major-General
Clarence Edwards, U. S. A., retired; Judge William C. Wait of the Massachusetts Superior Court, and William A. Morse, attorney for Miss Crabtree—are empowered to aid also any hospitals or other organizations performing a similar service to veterans and are directed to use the income from the fund semi-annually.

"In as much as the present time and in the immediate years to follow there will be greater occasion and demand for aid and assistance than there will be as the years go on," the will directs the trustees further to use the principal of the fund, if necessary, to accomplish the purpose of the trust. Life of 40 years for the trust is set by the donor.

As Miss Crabtree was most closely identified with Massachusetts, preferences shall be given to veterans in that State, but this request is not mandatory.

The $300,000 to be taken as the
"Lotta Dumb Animal Fund" is created for the care and support of dumb animals and particularly for "continuous and strenuous opposition to vivisection." Under this trust drinking fountains for men, horses, birds and dogs are to be set up and maintained. The New York and Boston as "Lotta Foundations."

The "Lotta Theatrical Fund" of $100,000 is set aside to help those members of the theatrical profession who through sickness or misfortune need assistance. Part of the income of this fund may be used for the education of young women in the theatrical profession.

Christmas gifts of clothing, food, coal, medicine or small donations in cash to needy persons are provided for in a fund of $100,000 established in the name of Mary A. Crabtree. Miss Crabtree's mother, Convicts discharged in the cities of San Francisco, St. Louis, Chicago, Washington, Louisville and New York will benefit from another $100,000 fund set aside as the "Lotta Fund for Aiding Discharged Convicts."

A sum of $100,000 is to be invested and the income is to be paid in installments of $10,000 per year to Mrs. Edwin Fretwell and Miss Sophia Liversy, both of San Francisco; also a similar amount to Miss Crabtree's cousins in England
—Mary Alice Shuttworth of Shipton, Yorkshire; Sarah A. Crabtree, Bacup, Lancashire, and John Henry Crabtree of Fendleton, Lancashire.

The sum of $50,000 is set aside for a fund to be known as the "Lotta Hospital Fund," the income to be paid annually to hospitals in Boston to be used in providing free beds and attendance for the sick poor.

The sum of $25,000 is set aside
as the "Lotta Educational Fund," the income to be paid annually to four pupils of the New England Conservatory of Music, who are without means to obtain a musical education.

All the residue of the estate is to be held in trust as a fund, known as the "Lotta Agricultural Fund," and from its semi-annual income the trustees are empowered to loan, without interest, to such graduates of the Massachusetts Agricultural College who have received their diplomas and who are without funds to engage in agricultural pursuits. In this particular case no graduate shall be entitled to receive the benefits of the fund without first obtaining a certificate from the college authorities as to his moral character and as to his department while in college.

BLIND MAN AND BOY GUIDE ARE RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Woman Driver Says Led Led His Charge Into Path of the Machine.

Charles Hutchcraft, 35, of 329 Marceau street, a blind man, and Charles Becker, 12 years old, of 214 Quincey street, who was guiding him across Davis street at Broadway at 5 p. m. yesterday, were struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Ann Hertlein, 3625 Chippewa street. Both were knocked down, cut and bruised. Mrs. Hertlein and her husband, Christ Hertlein, who accompanied her, told police the boy led the blind man into the path of the automobile and the accident was unavoidable.

Harry Hunter Jr., 5, of 3022 Thomas street, while crossing the street at 1324 Garrison avenue at 4 p. m., was struck by an automobile driven by Miss Christine Mengoth of Wellston. Physicians said he suffered internal injuries. Miss Mengoth was arrested. Another 5-year-old boy, Joshua B. Hubbard, of 3118 North Eleventh street, was struck as he crossed the street near his home by a coupe driven by Tony Badalamente, 1433 North Fourteenth street. Badalamente said the boy ran out in front of his car from behind a passing wagon. The boy suffered a fractured skull. William P. Hobbs, 72, of 4548 Wichita avenue, a motorman, at 4 p. m. was struck by an automobile driven by Earl Tyler, 3109 Market street, as Hobbs was crossing Manchester avenue at Taylor avenue. Hobbs suffered internal injuries.

TRIAL IN HARRISBURG, ILL. DYNAMITING CASE BEGINS

Houses of Two Deputy Sheriffs Who Were Active Against Bootleggers, Were Damaged.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARRISBURG, Ill., Sept. 26.—James Newcomb was placed on trial here today on charge of dynamiting the homes of Deputy Sheriffs Hubert Hawkins and Frank McIlrath on June 15. Thurman Nelson is jointly accused with him. Both Hawkins and McIlrath were active against suspected bootleggers. Five sticks of dynamite were placed in an automobile beside the home of Hawkins. The automobile was blown to pieces and the side of the house demolished.

Fifteen minutes later an explosion was heard in Dorville, a suburb, where dynamite had been placed on the rear porch of McIlrath's home. McIlrath, his wife and their two children were thrown from the house and five children were thrown from the house. The house was badly damaged.

The Biography of John W. Davis

CONGRESSIONAL reputations of the more favorable sort rest upon two essentials; one of them individual ability, the other the opportunity to display it. There is a school of thought which exclaims with Napoleon: "Opportunity? I make opportunity!" Adherents of this particular philosophy sometimes come to Congress. If they remain, their viewpoint gradually undergoes a change. For in Congress perhaps more than in other fields of political action, it is frequently true that circumstances shape careers. Greatness of the individual must often await auspicious conditions for their expression. In the absence of such auspices he may never attract attention.

From the day the Sixty-second Congress convened, on April 4, 1911, circumstance favored the new member from the First District of West Virginia. With his own party in control, the friendly hand of fate was first to place him in position to apply his abilities for their display. The manner in which he met them brought him national prominence and carried him further along the road marked out for him to follow.

It was a perfect setting. The progressive movement ushered in with the Roosevelt era had reached the point of eruption. The Ballinger scandal had broken. The public conscience had been aroused and political passions inflamed by cumulative evidences that the process of Government were being manipulated for private and selfish ends. As a phase of the effort to break the grip of so-called "privileged interests," these real or fancied abuses were beginning to result in reprisals. Here and there the political upthrust persisted, as the popular will found expression. The election of a Democratic Congress in 1910 was a part of this general movement. For the first time since 1895, the Democrats controlled a majority in the House, enabling them to direct its procedure and dictate its programs.

Such was the situation when John W. Davis came to Washington. At the outset of the session he became the beneficiary of a fortuitous committee assignment which contained in it the germs of the larger opportunities which were to follow. A short time before he had formed the acquaintance, in Clarkburg, of Charles C. Carlin, a member of Congress from Virginia and one of the higher Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee. In consequence of this contact, Carlin, who had formed a high opinion of the new member's legal ability, went to the chairman, Henry D. Clayton, and urged him to arrange to have Davis placed on that committee. So impressed was Clayton with Carlin's estimate that he conferred with Oscar W. Underwood, then the party floor leader and chairman of the Democratic Committee on Committees, and requested that the assignment be made. Underwood readily acquiesced. This was the entering wedge to Davis' congressional career.

Active in Framing of Anti-Trust Laws.

While his first term found him active in the preparation and passage of numerous legislative measures, his major energies were concentrated on legislation which came before the Judiciary Committee. Several antitrust bills were pending, and extended hearings were held in 1912-13, which laid the foundation for the subsequent enactment of the Clayton act. Former colleagues credit him with preparation of the final draft of the anti-injunction and anti-conspiracy clauses of the Clayton bill for presentation to the committee, and with additional activity in connection with the clause providing for a jury trial in contempt cases. On May 14, 1912, he made an extended speech dealing exclusively with the anti-injunction features of the proposed legislation, discussing abuses and remedies and defending its constitutionality. On July 9, 1912, he addressed the House on the contempt feature, again defending the constitutionality of the proposal and presenting an argument for jury trials in all cases where the alleged contempt did not occur in the presence of the court.

As chairman of a subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee he reported a compulsory workmen's compensation act which named both houses of the Sixty-second Congress, but too late to be considered in conference. Reintroducing the measure with amendments in the Sixty-third Congress, he again fathered its passage through the House. The bill was finally killed in the Senate.

His speeches of that period include an attack on Schedule E of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act, which President Taft declared indefensible; and a summary of the achievements of the Sixty-second Congress from a Democratic viewpoint. While questioning its constitutionality, he took a prominent part in the passage of the Webb-Kenyon act, prohibiting the transportation of intoxicating liquors in interstate commerce. He appears also as the author of an amendment which failed to pass the House, providing a penalty of fine and imprisonment for violation of the same act. Through the whole of his congressional activity there runs the thread of an obvious interest in constitutional law. His penchant is discovered in the debates of the Sixty-second Congress, in his formal speeches, and in the character of the legislation to which he chiefly devoted his attention.

Handled Prosecution of Judge Archbald.

But while active in the routine of the House—especially so for a new member—it was not in this field, but in two distinct and more or less extraneous developments during the relatively brief period of his legislative service, that he won his chief distinction. One of these was the Archbald impeachment trial, in which Judge John W. Archbald of Pennsylvania was convicted of "high crimes and misdemeanors" and removed from office. The other was the Glover case, in which Charles C. Glover, a wealthy Washington banker and society leader, was arrested and brought before the bar of the House of Representatives following a personal attack on Representative Thetus W. Sims of Tennessee. Both attracted national notice, figuring in the headlines day after day and being reported at great length in the press. As the prosecutor in each instance, Davis became known to the public almost overnight. Far more important in its bearing on his political career, however, his handling of the two cases brought to the attention of colleagues and the country at large the character of his ability and legal learning. The reputation thus established led directly to his subsequent appointment as Solicitor-General of the United States.

Judge Archbald, a member of the United States Circuit Court and United States Commerce Court, was impeached by the House July 11, 1912, on 13 articles, which, in effect, charged him with prostituting his office for personal gain. The Senate began the trial of the impeachment charges Dec. 3, 1912, and concluded it Jan. 13, 1913, returning a verdict of guilty. It was the first impeachment tried in a generation. In the entire history of the Republic only eight persons have been brought to trial on impeachment charges, and but three of these have been convicted. Archbald was the third. When the House decided to bring the impeachment Davis was chosen as one of the managers. His familiarity with constitutional law was already recognized. He was also known to entertain positive views on the necessity of rigidly upholding the integrity of the judiciary. The charges were thoroughly prepared and the evidence carefully assembled. Archbald was powerfully intrenched politically, with the late Senator Penrose as one of his most influential backers, and it was anticipated that a genuine newspaper sensation. Representative Sims, a veteran legislator, had seen fit in the preceding Congress to question the integrity of the banker in connection with certain real estate schemes in the national capital, and had vigorously opposed a bill for the purchase of real estate which Glover owned. While his remarks were deeply resented, it was not until many weeks after Sims had delivered them that the personal clash occurred.

Argued for Strict Integrity of Courts.

When the case came to trial the defense relied in part on the contention that while Judge Archbald admittedly had speculated in coal lands controlled by railroads which were litigants in his court, such conduct did not constitute "high crimes and misdemeanors" within the meaning of the Constitution, and therefore was not proper ground for impeachment. Answering this argument, Davis took the position that a Federal Judge holds office during life and "good behavior," and that an obvious departure from "good behavior" in office is in fact a "high crime and misdemeanor." Even if Archbald's conduct were not criminal in the accepted sense, it was highly improper and calculated to destroy public confidence in the courts, he contended, in that no Judge, who speculated in the properties of persons or corporations which came before him for judgment could be considered an impartial judicial officer.

Archbald was convicted on five of the 13 charges. The heaviest vote for conviction was 65 to 5, on the first count. On the final count, which summarized the charges and consigned his general unfitness to hold judicial office, the vote was 42 to 20 for conviction. The records of the trial, including the arguments and briefs of the House managers, stand as the accepted law and procedure in impeachment trials and the highest expression of the popular demand for integrity in the courts.

The result of the impeachment also had an important effect in checking popular suspicion of the Federal courts, which were alleged at the time to be subject to the same supposed corporate control as other branches of the Government. It was three months later, on April 15, 1913, that the Glover assault occurred. This incident possessed all the elements of a genuine newspaper sensation. Representative Sims, a veteran legislator, had seen fit in the preceding Congress to question the integrity of the banker in connection with certain real estate schemes in the national capital, and had vigorously opposed a bill for the purchase of real estate which Glover owned. While his remarks were deeply resented, it was not until many weeks after Sims had delivered them that the personal clash occurred.

Won Fresh Fame in Glover Assault Case.

About 9 o'clock on the morning in question the Tennesseean was walking through Farragut Square, in Washington, on the way from his residence to the Postoffice Department to see Daniel E. Roper, then First Assistant Postmaster-General, when Glover accosted him. Glover's own account of the encounter, as repeated by J. Fred Esary, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun during the House investigation of the incident, related that he had observed Sims "waddling" across the square, and after stopping him had said: "I want to tell you to your face that you are a contemptible liar; yes, a miserable, contemptible liar. Furthermore, I mean to show you just what I think of you."

With that he struck the Representative on the jaw with the palm of his hand, following this up with another blow in which the banker said he hit "as hard as he could."

Others intervened. Sims was led away and Glover returned to his waiting car and drove off. Although Sims made no report of the assault to the House, newspapers carried the story and an investigation was promptly ordered under authority of a resolution presented by Representative Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, who 10 years later was to become the Democratic leader of the House. The committee named to conduct the inquiry included Representative John W. Davis (chairman), J. Harry Covington, Charles R. Crisp, S. F. Frosty and John M. Nelson. Its members were also directed to determine and recommend the course of procedure to be followed in dealing with Glover, to the end that the privileges and immunities of members of the House might be maintained and protected.

After examining Sims and several other witnesses, Davis as chairman of the committee, prepared a report which once more revealed a grasp of Constitutional principles, but above all was characterized by clarity and conciseness. Thereupon ensued a spectacular contest. The debate lasted for five hours and ended in the adoption of the report by a large majority. In the opinion of many members of the House, as expressed at the time, Davis' speech in support of the resolution was one of the greatest addresses involving an interpretation of the Constitution ever delivered in that body. It was an unanswerable argument, couched in moderate terms and delivered with dignity, and brought its author fresh fame.

Glover was arrested, brought into the House chamber, and in the presence of its membership rebuked by the late Champ Clark, then Speaker. When President Wilson in the summer of 1913 announced Davis' appointment as Solicitor General, Republicans and Democrats alike joined in personal tributes. He resigned from the House Aug. 30 to assume his new duties.

$25,000 Jewelry Robbery.

By the Associated Press. CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—Theft of $25,000 worth of diamonds and other jewels from the home of Timothy S. Goodman last Saturday morning, was revealed today. Police and private detectives have been on the trail of members of a band of expert jewel thieves who have operated in Chicago and New York. The box containing the jewels was stolen from a dressing table 10 feet from where Mr. and Mrs. Goodman were sleeping. The invaders overlooked a pearl necklace valued at $25,000. Goodman is president and treasurer of a Cincinnati paper box company.

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS IN THIS DISTRICT REPORTED

Gains Noted in September Over Previous Month in Several Industries by Federal Reserve Bank.

Improvement in general business in the St. Louis Federal Reserve District during the last month has been slow, but steady, according to the September review issued today by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Gains noted over the preceding month appear chiefly in the building trades, boot and shoe industry and automobile, manufacturing. Small advances in railroad operations, and movements of clothing and groceries are accounted for largely by seasonal considerations.

Fair gains in employment were shown in the coal, lead and zinc mining sections and additions to their forces were made by the iron and steel, furniture, lumber and milling industries. A steady call for farm help is reported as well as a demand for common labor for road building, paving, river and railroad work.

Improvement in building activity is reported as the most notable, with largest operations in the southern part of the district. The banking position is regarded as favorable, while the progress of crops is characterized as irregular and spotty. In some localities disastrous results of drought and extreme hot weather were apparent, particularly in southern areas east of the Mississippi River, where prospects for fruit, vegetables, corn and tobacco were lowered. Corn in Missouri and Illinois, however, is said to be the best since 1917.

He is undecided as to his exact itinerary, although he intends to swing westward to the Pacific coast and to deliver a number of addresses in the Middle and Northwest.

OTT GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE FOR THE MURDER OF BAER

Illinois Farmer Convicted of Killing Neighbor by Jury at Belleville After Two Hours' Deliberation.

SHOOTING LAST MAY NEAR NEW ATHENS

Plea for Defendant Was That He Had Become Insane Over Wrong to Wife 16 Years Ago.

Jacob Ott, Illinois farmer, who shot Henry Baer, retired thresher, from a curtained automobile in New Athens on May 14 last, was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to life imprisonment at 9:45 o'clock last night in the Circuit Court at Belleville.

The jury reached its verdict after more than two hours' deliberation. The State, which contended that Ott killed Baer in an attempt to extort $500 from him, asked for the death penalty. The defense pleaded that Ott had become insane through brooding over wrongs Mrs. Ott is alleged to have suffered at Baer's hands 16 years ago. Ott is 48 years old.

Mystified at the Verdict.

When the verdict was reached, Judge Frank Gillham, who presided at the trial, had returned to Edwardsville and sentence was pronounced by Judge George A. Crowe of Belleville, who was summoned from his home. Except for bewilderment, Ott appeared unaffected by the jury's findings. He seemed particularly mystified at the clause which stated he was "to remain in prison for the remainder of his natural life" and inquired of Leslie Allison, one of the defense attorneys, what "natural life" meant. The sentence was explained to him, but a few minutes later he repeated the question.

Ott's wife and two children, who were present during the trial, did not remain to hear the verdict.

Only a few spectators and the regular court attaches were in the room when the jury returned. Allison refused to say what further steps would be taken by the defense.

The trial, which began last Tuesday, was featured by testimony of witnesses for both the State and defense. Dr. R. A. Goodner of Nashville, Ill., and Dr. M. W. Hope of St. Louis declared on the stand that Ott unquestionably was a paranoiac and suffered from a mania on religious matters. Each told of visiting him twice in jail where he related how he had asked for divine guidance in the question of killing Baer and had been advised to use his own judgment. The witnesses for the prosecution, Dr. Francis Barnes and Dr. H. Unterberg of St. Louis and Dr. James Reed of Chicago, testified that he was sane in their opinion and responsible for his actions. Several business men of New Athens also told of dealings with Ott in which he had exhibited rational, and even acute, judgment.

Plea Stressed by Defense. Defense Attorney Charles A. Karch stressed Ott's brooding over his wife's alleged infidelity in reviewing the case. Such worry, he declared, might easily produce mental abnormality in the course of 16 years. State's Attorney H. C. Lindauer, demanding the death penalty, characterized the killing of Baer as one of the most brutal crimes ever committed in St. Clair County.

As is known, Baer was slain while working on his lawn in New Athens. Ott's 14-year-old son driving the curtained automobile in which the shot was fired. After the shooting Ott fled to his farm, 14 miles from New Athens, and barricaded himself, where he resisted arrest for four hours, wounding two of the spectators who gathered at the place to witness his capture. For many years his hostility toward Baer had been a matter of public comment in New Athens.

$1400 POSTAL JOB FOR SERGEANT ELLIS

World War Hero Made Eligible for Position Here by Presidential Order.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Sergeant Michael Ellis, St. Louis' most renowned World War hero, by an executive order, signed yesterday by President Coolidge, was made eligible for a $1400 position as clerk or carrier in the St. Louis Postoffice, without civil service examination.

In 1919 Sergeant Ellis was decorated by Gen. Pershing in St. Louis with the Congressional Medal of Honor "for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty in action with the enemy near Exeter, France, Oct. 5, 1918. He served with Company C, Twenty-eighth Infantry. According to Sergeant Ellis' citation, on that day he operated for an advance of the first wave of his company, voluntarily undertaking the most dangerous missions and single-handed attacking and reducing machine gun nests. Flanking one emplacement, he killed two of the enemy with rifle fire and captured 17 others. Later he single-handedly advanced under heavy fire and captured 27 persons, including two officers and six machine guns which had been holding up the advance of the company. The captured officers indicated the location of four other machine guns. He in turn captured these, together with their crews, at all times showing marked heroism and fearlessness."

The executive order, giving him a position in the postal service, came as the result of the representations made in his behalf by Assistant Secretary of War Dwight Davis of St. Louis, to whom a letter had been referred in which Sergeant Ellis sought Government employment "because he was out of work and broke."

Has Found It Hard to Get Employment, Ellis Says.

At his home, 4111 Russell avenue, Ellis said today he had written Secretary Davis inquiring what provision, if any, the Government made for a man who had been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, and that he wanted either a commission in the army or a postal job. He said he had found it difficult getting satisfactory employment and that his acquaintances had offered him money when he really wanted work. He added that he had stopped talk of a proposed movement to purchase him a home after his return from France.

Ellis, who is now married, is 31 years old. Besides the Congressional Medal of Honor, the action's highest award, seven miles east of here, between 2 and 3 a. m. today, cut all wires leading out of the town, and then blew open the vault of the Exchange State Bank, securing approximately $100,000. The heavy charge of explosive, which the robbers used in blasting an entrance into the bank's strong box, wrecked the safe and did considerable damage to the interior of the building.

ATTORNEY WHO KILLED SELF LEFT $40,000 IN BONDS

Will of D. D. Dutton of Kansas City Leaves Estate to Father and Mother.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 20.—The desk and vault in the office of D. D. Dutton, attorney, who committed suicide Friday, were opened today by John E. Wilson, Police Commissioner and office associate of Dutton.

In the vault were found Dutton's will, about $40,000 in Liberty bonds, abstracts to property, three articles of jewelry and the books of the Red Cross chapter, of which Dutton was executive secretary and director.

The will directed that all of Dutton's debts be paid, left $1000 to his father, H. D. Dutton, and the remainder of the estate to the mother, Mrs. Jane Bennett Dutton. Wilson was named as executor of the estate. The will required that he serve without bond. The will was dated July 11, 1919.

Investigation of the income tax returns of Dutton, had been dropped, it was announced last night by David Nolan, head of the Missouri intelligence section of the Treasury Department, whose office began an inquiry into Dutton's personal affairs, following a controversy over income taxes. The death of the taxpayer usually ends his cases and I see no reason for continuing this investigation," Nolan said.

The Government had contended Dutton should pay $1460.55 in back taxes and $700 penalty for failure to pay the taxes when due. Dutton had contended he did not owe the amount because it represented a tax on salary he received from the Red Cross for services previous to the income tax law.

GREECE AND TURKEY EXCHANGE NATIONALS

Contact of Hostile Populations Being Broken; Thousands Are Moving.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News, Copyright, 1931.

PERA, Turkey, Sept. 20.—Instead of returning one million Greek refugees to their homes, enabling production and commerce to be resumed in the Far East, a further exodus of Greeks from Turkey and an exchange of Turks from Greece was accepted in Lausanne to the great detriment of this part of the world.

Although the exchange satisfies the Turks, who desire to maintain Turkey for the Turks, it prevents contact of hostile populations. As Tevik Ruchdi Bey says, "It is better for Greeks in Turkey to become Turkish citizens and Turks in Greece to become citizens of Greece, thus preventing incidents which might lead to war; thus 200,000 Greeks instead of 20,000 could enter Turkey to conduct commerce."

The exchange is being conducted rapidly. Last week 2500 Greeks left Kemer, Bnurgas, Kartal, Maltepe and Pendik aboard three Greek warships and 500 Turks arrived. A mixed commission under a neutral president granted 14,000 passports to Greeks. Besides the 1,000,000 Greeks who fled following their defeat, 80,000 have fled since the commission was formed and 10,000 are still to leave within the next month.

From Constantinople from 50,000 to 70,000 Greeks must leave if the Turk viewpoint is maintained and 20,000 if the Greeks prevail. The argument is around the word "established," or the definition of domicile before 1918. There are 370,000 Turks left in Greece. The commission must still decide the status of Turks and Albanians of Mussulman descent. There are about 22,000 in Epirus.

When the Greeks fled, the Turks scrambled for their abandoned property, resulting in much injustice and confusion. Premier Ismet Pasha issued orders designed to bring order out of the confusion, giving the local authorities a fortnight to arrange affairs. The Greeks are about 50 per cent merchants and artisans and 50 per cent farmers, while the Turks are 90 per cent rich farmers.

THREE GOLTRA BARGES

LOADED WITH GRAIN

Towboat Illinois to Be Ready Today or Tomorrow to Move Cargo to New Orleans.

Three United States Government barges, under lease to Edward F. Goltra, lay today at the Missouri Pacific grain elevator, at Primst street, Carondelet, where they were loaded with grain yesterday. Their load, 166,500 bushels, or about 5000 tons, is said to be the biggest day's loading ever done at a local elevator.

Goltra said today that other barges were to be loaded with grain, and that the towboat Illinois would be ready today or tomorrow to move the cargo to New Orleans. The towboat Iowa, he said, will be ready within the next few days. He said some of the barges, recently in use by the Government, were not in good condition, but that he expected to fulfill the conditions prescribed by Federal Judge Faria, at the time when the equipment was awarded to Goltra three weeks ago.

Judge Faria, Sept. 9, said that unless two of the four towboats leased to Goltra, and 14 of the 19 barges, were in service by Oct. 1 (tomorrow), he would consider appointment of a receiver to put the equipment in use.

"Low water in the Mississippi, between St. Louis and Cairo, may cause some of the barges to be taken to Cairo for loading, Goltra said. At the Primst street elevator today, one of the barges of the Government line was being loaded with grain. It is an eight-compartment barge, while those loaded yesterday for Goltra are open, or single-compartment barges, with tarpaulins.

When clean and clear, the intestine is converting wholesome food into vigorous health. But when clogged by constipation, it generates poisons from the obstructed food that can lead to many serious diseases.

Kellogg's Bran sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It has a natural, healthy action. It works exactly as nature acts. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer will return your money.

Results with Kellogg's Bran are sure, for Kellogg's is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. That is why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is endorsed by doctors everywhere. Eat it and you need never take another habit-forming drug or pill.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, should be eaten regularly—at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will enjoy eating it. Kellogg's Bran has a wonderful flavor, a delicious nut-like flavor. And this flavor is an exclusive Kellogg achievement.

There are many ways to enjoy Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Eat it with milk or cream as a cereal. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Look for the recipes on every package and try it in muffins, griddle cakes, bran bread, etc. Bring back your health with Kellogg's Bran. Start today! Every member of your family should eat it. The leading hotels and clubs serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. It is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

WORLD FLYERS START EASTWARD BY TRAIN

Aviators Will Go to Dayton to Witness Air Races for Pulitzer Cup.

By the Associated Press.
SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 20.—Leaving the planes in which they completed the first circumnavigation of the globe, six United States Army Lieutenants prepared to leave Seattle at 3:10 this morning by train for Dayton, O., to witness the Pulitzer Cup race. The aviators plan to return here later to claim their prizes at Sand Point Aviation Field.

"I didn't say good-by to my machine, just said au revoir," said Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the expedition, and pilot of the flagplane Chicago.

Smith said last night he came "as close to crying when I saw a monument, commemorating the world flight, unveiled at Sand Point yesterday as I ever did, because I wasn't expecting it, and never thought of a monument with my name on it until my head was under it."

The monument, a polished granite column, 15 feet high, with a model of the globe on top from which bronze wings symbolize a bird alighting at the end of a flight, is the gift of Mrs. Frances Cole of Spokane, sister of Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold, mechanic for Lieut. Powell H. Smith. It was designed and modeled by Victor Alonzo Lewis, Seattle sculptor.

The flyers are to be routed over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad to Chicago and thence to Dayton, O.

HOOVER SAYS LA FOLLETTE PLAN IS STEP BACKWARD

Government Ownership of Utilities
Would Wreck Democracy, Secretary Thinks.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Government ownership of public utilities would require rewriting of the Constitution and loss to the American people of most of their democracy, Secretary Hoover declared last night in an address broadcast from radio stations throughout the country.

"What Senator La Follette proposes," he said, "is a transitory experiment of government in business, and a change in our social, economic and political principles that will react to revolutionize our Government itself."

Government ownership plans of La Follette's adherents, the Secretary said, call for the Government's purchase and operation of railway, electrical and other utilities valued by official commissions at about 40 billions of dollars with 2,700,- 000 employees, requiring $2,000,- 000,000 annually for bond interest, with an operating budget of 10 billions of dollars a year.

The project, the secretary said, would wreck our democracy and would be a step backward by a country which has found the true road of advancement in these enterprises "through sustained initiative and equality of opportunity to have people with public control to prevent abuse."

French Scientist Discovers
New Ingredient to Dissolve Fat.

A French woman now in America reports that a new treatment for obesity has been found by a well-known French scientist; it is a simple, harmless combination of ingredients put up in a small tablet called "SANGRI-NA," which helps nature in throwing off unnecessary fat-forming elements, thus making it impossible for fat to form and accumulate on the body. Already surprising reports from all parts have been received. Cases of reducing vary from 10 to 50 pounds in a remarkably short time, with complete restoration of health and marvelous change in general appearance. While
"SANGRI-NA" is mostly recommended for reducing, it is also an invaluable help to get rid of all-worn-out, tired feeling—away with puffing and in many cases entirely relieved high blood pressure. Guaranteed absolutely harmless. Recommended by specialists, physicians and nurses as a safe, positive and simple way to take off from 5 to 6 pounds a week. "SANGRI-NA" is sold at Speckart Bros., Draper's, Enderle's, Otto's, Judd's, Dolph's, Wolff-Wilson's or Kranson Bros. Drug Stores.

You eat when you are hungry; do you sleep when you are tired?

When nature tells you that you are hungry, you eat until the hunger is gone. But when you are tired, do you always go to bed and sleep until you are thoroughly rested?

Because it seems to many to be a waste of time, sleep is often the most neglected necessity of life.
Yet it would be better for you to miss a meal any time than to lose an hour of the sleep you need.

Even when you retire as punctually as you eat and average no less than eight hours in bed, you may be starved for sleep—just as you lose weight when you eat coarse foods that fill but do not nourish.

You may not suspect your spring or mattress. You may be so used to light, broken rest that you do not know how much strength and energy you are sacrificing daily.

Spare a few minutes tonight to study the bed you use. Compare it with the Simmons springs and mattresses offered by leading furniture dealers at the lowest prices it is safe for you to pay. Then decide whether your sleep is as

ELGIN TAKES THE TIME FROM THE STARS AND PUTS IT ON YOUR WRIST

How the stars in their courses serve the owner of an ELGIN Watch

NIGHT after night, for centuries past, while the rest of the world was asleep, astronomers somewhere have studied the stars.

Year by year the exactness of their knowledge has grown—and its practicality.

The Elgin Watch in your pocket or upon your wrist is a dependable timekeeper no less than a beautiful piece of jewelry because of the practical work of the astronomers at the Elgin Time Observatory.

Each night during all the months it was in the process of being made and adjusted, the Elgin astronomers observed the stars.

Each night they took the time from the stars—whose orderly procession as the rotation of the earth brings them across the zenith is the only final and absolute measure of time.

Each day, second after second, the precise time, checked by these star observations, guided the workers in the Elgin factories as they made and timed your watch.

Thousands and thousands of men and women are wearing more accurate watches today because of the Elgin professional spirit which the Elgin Time Observatory typifies.

In fact your jeweler will tell you that no other single cause has had so much to do with raising the standards of watch-making generally.

MISS PEP AND MISS FAUST WIN FIRST ROUND GOLF MATCHES

Mrs. Kohn Also Wins Women's District Event

Miss Pep Wins Low Medal Honors With Card of 87.

MISS FAUST OFF FORM

Dubbed Drives and Mused Putts Spoil Her Medal Score.

GLEN ECHO COUNTRY CLUB, Sept. 28.—Favorites came through as expected in the first round of the Women's District Golf Tournament at the Glen Echo Country Club this morning, though in some cases the scores were closer than expected. Miss Virginia Peck, defending her title as district champion, an honor she has held for the last two years, scored an easy victory over Mrs. Doddridge Farrell of Glen Echo, 6 up and 4. Miss Pep shot a 45 on the outward journey, three over her score for the same nine yesterday.

Miss Audrey Faust of the Country Club, who was off her game yesterday, but who scored a 91, the second best qualifying card, was in better form today. She shot the first nine holes in 38 and disposed of Mrs. Vance Taylor of Algonquin, 7 up and 6 to play. Miss Faust got into trouble on the ninth and picked up.

Mrs. R. J. Kohn of North Hills, runner-up in the 1923 tournament at the Midland Valley Country Club, had a scare in her match today when she was down to Mrs. C. Robbins of Normandie during the first nine holes. Mrs. Kohn struck her best stride on the inward journey, however, and won the match, 3 up and 2. Mrs. Robbins shot a fine round of golf and with a little more experience will be a factor in every women's tournament in the St. Louis district.

Mrs. Corbett is Victor. Mrs. J. A. Corbett of Glen Echo, president of the Women's District Golf Association, defeated Miss Lucy Terry in the closest match of the day. They were all even after 18 holes. On the extra hole Miss Terry, trying for a long drive, sliced into a sand trap to the right of the fairway. Mrs. Corbett had a fine drive straight down the middle, made a fine approach and took two putts for a par four. Miss Terry recovered from the sand nicely but Mrs. Corbett's four was too good.

New Players Try For Positions on Billikens' Squad

Kearns, Former Xavier Football Player, and Koppa, Half-back, Out for Practice.

The St. Louis University football squad will depart Thursday noon for West Point, where it will meet the Army eleven on the Cadets' gridiron, Saturday. It was announced yesterday. No announcement has been made yet as to the number of men Coach Savage will elect to take nor has it been suggested what men will make the journey. The players are all working doubly hard at the Grand avenue field to make the grade. In the light of their aggressive play last Saturday against the Springfield Teachers, it is considered fortunate that the Billikens emerged with so little damage. An X-ray picture was taken of half-back McCarty's dislocated shoulder, and by tomorrow it will be known whether the ground-gainer will be in shape for the Army game. The injury was believed to be a strain, but it was kept him out of action for the remainder of the year, but McCarty was able to swing his arm pretty freely yesterday, although not in uniform.

Former Xavier Star Turns Out.

Two new men came out yesterday, both of whom may appear in the selection contest. "Scotty" Kearns, a St. Xavier man who played freshman here last year, played several hours at center under the tutelage of Assistant Coach Brown and looked like a fine prospect. A halfback named Koppa was in war torn and spent much time learning signals. Freshman Coach Jimmy Finnegan who has a promising squad of 13 yearlings, announced yesterday that he was kicking with Central Wesleyan College of Warrenton for engagement to serve as captain rather to the St. Louis-Detroit fray which takes place about midseason. Coach Finnegan also trying to find a suitable attraction for preliminary to the St. Louis-Centenary game on Thanksgiving day.

TWO NOTED ENGLISH THOROUGHBREDS ARRIVE

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Two noted English thoroughbreds were in a consignment of horses for Mr. S. Christensen of Pleasanton, which arrived yesterday on the Minnetonka.

These are Langdon Hills, 3 years old, which won the Great Metropolitan, an English turf classic, in 1919, and Bumba, 11-year-old son of Carbine, who won the Kentucky Cup in 1909. Bumba sired Matinka, winner of the Cambridgehire in 1920. Both horses will be used for breeding.

Football Teams of West On Par With Any in the Country, Warner Declares

Coach at Stanford University Points Out That Westerners' Experience at Rugby Helps Them With Forward Pass.

By Glenn Warner, Coach Stanford University, California.

A GREAT many people in the East and here on the Coast have asked me how Pacific Coast football compares with the Eastern brand of football.

I confess that I know more about Eastern football. But I believe I have learned enough of the Pacific Coast game to be able to make a comparison.

We are bothered more here trying to correct the old rugby habits than all other coast colleges, because Stanford continued the rugby game several years after the other schools abandoned it, and Stanford is only just catching up with her rivals in the American game.

My first knowledge of the game out here was gained when I brought the Castile Indians to San Francisco in 1899 to play the University of California. Ad Kelly and Gerry Cochran of Princeton were then coaching California, and they turned out a great team. The game was played upon a very soft, sandy field, which raised havoc with both teams' offense and the Indians won by the narrow margin of two points.

The result of a safety. Castile had one of her strongest teams that year and was up near the top in Eastern football, having defeated the University of Pennsylvania and played a very close game with Harvard.

Thus it can be seen that 25 years ago California was playing about the same caliber of football as was played back East.

The Trip to Coast in 1902. In 1902, I again brought the Indians to the coast, defeating the University of Utah, an all-star team called All-California, and the Sherman Institute Indians. The latter team gave Castile the hardest battle but I do not think the All-Californians were as good a team as some of the coast university teams were and I could see little difference then between Eastern and Western football. Shortly after that year, during the roughness of the game due to the push and pull, close formation tactics which generally in use, the Pacific Coast colleges discontinued the American college game and took up rugby and the schools followed suit. They have recently gone back to the American game that many of the present college players obtained their first knowledge of football by playing the English game and rugby has left its influence upon the American game in fact, although rugby is not played at all now on the coast, there were enough good rugby players this year to form a team which won the Olympic championship at Paris. The players composing that team had not played any rugby of late years but had been playing the American brand of football and as a result the French audience thought the Americans were playing too rough, when, as a matter of fact, they were tackling the way tackling is done in the American game, and not simply checking the runner, as is usual in rugby.

Effect of Playing Rugby. The prevailing opinion out here is that experience in playing rugby handicaps a player in the American game, but that experience in the American game makes a better rugby player. I have seen enough here at Stanford to become convinced that players who have played the English game have a number of bad faults which it is hard for them to overcome, such as carrying the ball out in front of them in both hands when running in the open field instead of putting it under one arm, so that they are less liable to fumble and have one hand free to ward off tacklers.

We are bothered more here trying to correct the old rugby habits than all other coast colleges, because Stanford continued the rugby game several years after the other schools abandoned it, and Stanford is only just catching up with her rivals in the American game.

Two years ago I brought the University of Pittsburgh team to the coast to play Stanford, and all played by the score of 21 to 14, in which the Panthers reaped a harvest of 22 hits, including four home runs. Incidentally the Panthers, who were out and out played by the score of 21 to 14, in which the Panthers reaped a harvest of 22 hits, including four home runs. Incidentally the Panthers, who were out and out played by the score of 21 to 14, in which the Panthers reaped a harvest of 22 hits, including four home runs.

However, faint hearts, take a peek at the records, and there learn that McGraw is NOT invincible. In fact, the besting AGAINST his winning a world's series, based on past achievements, ought to be 5 to 1.

Experience Worth Something. EXPERIENCE is important, however. As between McGraw, the gray-haired victor in 19 pennant races, and Stanley Harris, the 25-year-old Miracle Man, who put a spark plug into a flivver and made a championship machine out of it, there are few who would pick Harris. In experience, plus the burden of playing, as well as managing, would seem too heavy a load to shoulder.

The Giant players if all the regulars are used, will also have the advantage of having been through the ordeal by fire. Their chance of stage fright, of over-excitement or "boners" under pressure is less than the Senators'.

The Nationals showed a tendency toward tightness in their last series in St. Louis, when the issue with the Tanks was still a burning hot one. They went soaring under pressure in two games, and in one of them they made six errors.

However, the fighting finish was in the nature of a baptism, such as they can expect in the world's series, and probably has taken the edge off their nervousness.

None the less, as between tried veterans and raw recruits in world championship wars, both as to managers and players, there can be only one choice.

FRED MARBERRY STARS AS WASHINGTON WINS PENNANT AT BOSTON

By the Associated Press. BOSTON, Sept. 28.—Washington beat the fans of the country happy yesterday by winning the American League pennant beyond any possibility of mishap, by beating the Red Sox, 4 to 2.

Each team scored in the first inning, but the Red Sox had the run in with none out and the bases full, yet could not break through Lefty Zachary for a big inning. In the third the Sox got their second and last run. Thereafter Fred Marberry, the demon pitcher or relief man for Washington, beat the Sox from the plate. He had worked as relief man in all three games here and in 56 games for the Senators. He has been as big an asset to them as any other pitcher, except, possibly, Walter Johnson.

The game was decided as it proved in the second. With two out and none on, Beck and Loe to short center. He raced around to third on Ruel's single. Zachary's single let Beck score and then Loe held short a single is right and Ruel scored. The fourth and last Senators' run came in the eighth on A. Marberry, double off the left field fence, followed by Sam Rice's single after he had twice fouled in trying to bunt.

There were some spectacular plays by Beck and Stan Harris and by Dudley Lee, the Sox shortstop, who robbed Judge and Blagoe of apparent hits by brilliant plays in the sixth.

The crowd of 12,000 was warmly for the Senators. After the winning team, its boy manager, Walter Johnson and the grizzled Clark Griffith, were right and their ovations as they happily filed off the field.

Comparatively easy games are in prospect for the remainder of the Western Conference teams.

Ft. Worth Needs One More Victory

Texas League Champions Have Won Three Straight From Memphis.

By the Associated Press. FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 28.—The Fort Worth Panthers, five-time champions of the Texas League, today needed but one victory for them to be crowned Dixie champions for 1924. The Cats, as the team is better known in Texas, have already won the honor in three out of their four attempts and if the team successfully defeats Memphis, it will be the fourth time that the supreme honors of the South will have been won by the same team under the same management.

Yesterday, Fort Worth raised the count in games in its favor to three to two by a slam-bang victory over the Senators, 14 to 8, in which the Panthers reaped a harvest of 22 hits, including four home runs. WRAY'S COLUMN

That McGraw Bogey. REPORTED odds of 6 to 5 on the Washington team, as reflected in a wager of $1800 to $1500, do not indicate correctly the popular view of the coming struggle. In places where the hard-bolled heroes of previous world's series word-battles congregate, there is a strong feeling that beating John McGraw is about as easy as beating death or the tax collector.

McGraw's too wise for "em," is the prevailing view. Perhaps Walter Johnson, when he hurries will be favorite; but the impression gained here is that there is more sympathy for the Senators than hope.

Jawn Shows His Fine Hand. McGraw's resourcefulness in jockeying his team of crimples and hasbeens first across the finish in the face of two strong challenges by Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, has greatly strengthened the fear of this Bogey Man of baseball.

However, faint hearts, take a peek at the records, and there learn that McGraw is NOT invincible. In fact, the besting AGAINST his winning a world's series, based on past achievements, ought to be 5 to 1.

Mass Meeting To Take Up Central's Status

Although the student council and Central High School voted a week ago to return to the High School Athletic League, a desire to start football practice immediately, no step toward participation in athletics has been taken, and it appears that, under present conditions, Central will remain out of the league. A mass meeting of Central pupils, teachers and alumni will be held in the school auditorium this evening, starting at 8 o'clock, the purpose of which is to "decide the future athletic policy of the school."

Handbills announcing the meeting and urging every student, teacher and former student, as well as parents, to be present, have been circulated and are being posted on the Central bulletin board.

Although the approach of the football season stirred the alumni to action, the tennis situation is even more pressing for the

High School Muddle, Plays With St. Louis U.

BILL THOMAS, the fellow who started the row which has thrown the High School Athletic League into a state of turmoil such as it has not experienced in its entire history, is now a member of the freshman team at St. Louis University.

Thomas is playing a halfback position. Solie Goldberg, another ex-Central High star of 1923, is also on the Billiken freshman squad. Thomas, standing 5 feet 7 inches and weighing 185 pounds, is making a fine impression. Jimmy Finnegan, freshman coach, now has 35 athletes under his tutelage, one of the largest first-year squads St. Louis U. has had in years.

Although the student council at Central High School voted a week ago to return to the High School Athletic League and voiced a desire to start football practice immediately, no step toward participation in athletics has been taken, and it appears that, under present conditions, Central will remain out of the league.

A mass meeting of Central pupils, teachers and alumni will be held in the school auditorium this evening, starting at 8 o'clock, the purpose of which is to decide the future athletic policy of the school.

Handbills announcing the meeting and urging every student, teacher and former student to attend the meeting have been circulated and a similar notice appears on the Central bulletin board.

Central withdrew from the league because the league council, composed of the principals of the five high schools, took away from Central the football championship of 1923 because of the use of Bill Thomas, a player who was over age. The fact that Central used Thomas in good faith and the fact that Central's football victories were not protested by opposing schools in the manner specified by the league constitution are conditions which have led the alumni and Central students to believe that the principals had no right to take away the football title. They demand now that the football title be restored if Central is to return to the league.

The Board of Education, which took cognizance of the dispute and appointed a special committee to investigate, has indicated that it will not step in to straighten the affair out. The board committee recommended that the matter be left with the principals. Any action taken by the mass meeting tonight, therefore, will probably be communicated to the principals. A request that the question be reopened by the heads of the five schools will probably be made.

Layton Defeats Mueller.
Johnny Layton won the first block of his special pocket billiard match with Gus Mueller last night at Mueller's parlors. The score was 150 to 83. The second block will be played this evening at Layton's.

In the Layton league, Eddie Huether last night defeated Ed Sheels, 75 to 68. Huether had a high run of 14.

Jatindra Gobar This Time.
By the Associated Press.
VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 30.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis retained his title as heavyweight wrestling champion of the world here last night by winning over Jatindra Gobar, Hindu grappler, in straight falls. Lewis took the first fall in 46 minutes 15 seconds with the headlock, and the second fall with the headlock again in 5 1/2 minutes.

SENATORS AND GIANTS PREPARE FOR WORLD SERIES OPENER SATURDAY

Walter Johnson Likely To Pitch Against Nehf
In First Title Contest

Public Has Four Days in Which to Enjoy Anticipation and Arguments Over Merits of American and National League Champions — McGrawmen Have the Experience.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Can the Washington Senators carry on this unexpected triumphal march? Will this be their year? Will their team work, inspiration and brilliant fielding enable them to defeat the master tactician, John J. McGraw, in the world series? Or will the American League suffer from nerves that the warriors of McGraw will hammer them to an easy victory? What will the Giants do against Walter Johnson? Who will pitch the first game?

The breath just passed out of the pennant race yesterday, when the Senators beat the Red Sox and clinched the league title, but already the baseball hordes have found a new love, a new thing to bandy about in speculation, so that they may enjoy the series in anticipation. The two pennant winners, the Washington Americans and New York Nationals, will open the series at the national capital Saturday.

Those who think experience, and especially experience under fire, is the most valuable asset, point to the fact that this will be the fourth successive world series for the Giants and for John McGraw, whereas it will be the Senators' first small of world series powder. John McGraw has been mixed up in pennant fights and world series for a dozen years, whereas 28-year-old Stanley Harris not only is pilot in his first world series winner, but also his first team. He is the first-year manager, the world series greenhorn, against the master tactician.

Will Youth Be Served?
On the other hand, the supporters of the Washington club argue that the Senators have proved their courage. They say the Senators' youth will be an asset and that the strong and sturdy men of Bucky Harris, in fine physical condition despite the heated summer campaign, are in much better shape for the series than are the Giants, crippled by injuries to Groh and Frisch.

Moreover, the American League partisans contend, the pitching staff of the Senators is far superior. Harris has the great and only Walter Johnson and Zahniser and Mordridge and Zachary and Marberry, whereas McGraw has Nehf as virtually his only dependable hurler. In fact, there are so many arguments on both sides that it is well that four days remain before the series starts, or the fans might not have time to drive home all their points.

Meantime the two teams will have their last preliminary practice before the battle. The work of the Giants between now and Saturday will have much to do with the betting on the series. If Frisch and Groh really are fit and able to return to the fray, the Giants' chances will be greatly improved. If work on the field shows that their bones and muscles cannot stand the heat of battle, then the public will be more inclined to believe that this is the Washington team's year and that just as the Boston Braves of 1914, a team from nowhere, swept over the Philadelphia Athletics, the team of teams.

In 1915, so the Senators of last year's joke book will crush the Giants this year.

Best Four Out of Seven.
The series will open with games in Washington Saturday and Sunday, after which the contestants will shift to New York, to play three games at the Polo Grounds, the home of the Giants. If the series is still undecided, the sixth game will be played at Washington, and if the teams then are tied at three victories each, a coin will be flipped to decide the scene of the seventh and deciding contest.

The series should be one of the most attractive in years. The contest will be between two teams which have proved their courage. The Senators have been under a strain all the way, but they have not cracked. They have had their bad days and have played some bad games. They looked like anything but champions in two games of their last series at Sportsman's Park, but a team cannot be judged accurately on a game or two. The test is in the long run. Many times during the season good teams drew up to within a point or two of the Senators. But the men of Harris took that look in the eye and showed their stuff. Even when the Yankees cut down their lead and went into first place and it appeared that the Washington ship was about to crack on the rocks of nerves and strain, the team took a brace and again forced its way into the leading position.

Credit for McGraw.
McGraw's team is known for its courage. Brooklyn and Pittsburgh had great chances this fall to overtake and pass the crippled Giant machine. Heine Groh was on crutches and Frank Frisch was out of the game. George Kelly, a first baseman, was on second, and the New York team was a patched-up affair. But when the fighting began, the Pirates and Dodgers wilted and dropped out of the picture, while the Giants, fighting with their backs to the wall and a crutch in each hand, proved beyond a doubt their right to represent the National League in combat.

Other world series prove the fallacy of comparing pitching staffs. In 1921 Walter Hoyt, least considered of Huggins' pitchers, was the hero, while Mays, expected to be the ace, was pounded. The pitchers on whom McGraw depended most failed him, and Jess Barnes, a knight of the bullpen, came out of the baseball scullery and won the series.

But that uncertainty of pitching won't keep the public from debating the comparative merits of Walter Johnson and Art Nehf. The great fast ball pitcher of the Senators probably will be the opening day pitcher, and it is probable that McGraw also will send in his best flinger in an effort to get the advantage that a first-game victory means in a seven-game series.

Walter Johnson in a world series! Yes, it will be worth traveling far to see.

Selected to Pitch Opening Game of Series With Giants

WALTER JOHNSON

Manager Stanley Harris of Washington has announced that he intends to pitch the veteran Johnson in the opening game of the world series, Saturday.

When the New York Giants take the field in the opening game of the 1924 world's series against the Senators Saturday, it will be the ninth time that John McGraw has led a club in the title struggles. McGraw has won ten pennants in the National League, all with the New York club, and this season he set a new record for major league managers to shoot at when he captured his fourth straight.

One other manager performed the feat of winning four straight pennants, but that was in the old American Association when Charles Comiskey, now owner of the White Sox, turned the trick with the old St. Louis Browns. Comiskey's victories came in 1885, 1886, 1887 and 1888. But no modern-day leader has been able to accomplish what McGraw has done.

Lost Five World's Series.
While McGraw has been the leader of the National League representative in eight previous world's series he has not had a great deal of success, as he won but three victories against five defeats. Two of his victories came in recent campaigns at the expense of the Yankees.

For the eighth series in which McGraw's team has participated, the Giants have chalked up 23 victories against 24 defeats, putting the Little Napoleon under the 500 mark in conquests. McGraw's most overwhelming victory in the title struggle came in 1922, when the Yankees were beaten in four straight clashes. In 1905, the first series in which the Giants participated, the Athletics were downed in four of five battles.

The Giants' world's series record under McGraw is as follows:

Year-Opponent	W.	L.
1905—Athletics	4	1
1911—Athletics	2	4
1912—Red Sox	3	4
1913—Athletics	1	4
1917—White Sox	2	4
1921—Yankees	5	3
1922—Yankees	4	0
1923—Yankees	2	4
Total	23	24

Two Games Tied.
In addition to the victories and defeats, the McGrawmen have played two games in the world's series. One of these came in the 1912 battles with the Red Sox and the other in the 1922 clash with the Yankees.

McGraw's first pennant winner came in 1904, but in that season no world's series was played. The Little Napoleon has been manager of the New York team 22 years, and with 10 pennants this gives him a record of a flag winner practically every other year. His teams have finished second eight times, were third once and fourth twice. During this long stretch under McGraw the Giants have finished in the second division only once, that being in 1915, when the aggregation wound up the season

Nebraska in for Grueling Season

Missouri Valley's Fear of One-Time Bogey Game, Walter Camp Writes.

By Walter Camp.

(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The University of Nebraska is in for a season of terrific football struggles this year, for every team in the Missouri Valley Conference has got the idea that Nebraska can be beaten.

The thought of possible victory over Nebraska gained great headway last fall, when Kansas held the Nebraskaans to a 0-0 tie and Missouri held them to a 7-7 tie. These teams will be especially at Nebraska's throat this year.

Kind Word, for Billiken.

It might not be a bad plan for anyone in the East who has an other game in mind to run to West Point Oct. 4 and see the game with St. Louis.

This team has a couple of good men in Capt. McKenzie and their fullback, Ramascotti. It is interesting to note that Brown of Notre Dame is coaching the St. Louis line.

Keen Race in Southwest.

Down in the Southwest Conference, in Texas, the Southern Methodist are going to be threatened in spite of their victory last year. The University of Texas, which finished second last season, is out for a place at the top. Rice Institute, which was away down the list, is out for a place in the upper half of the percentage column, and Baylor and Arkansas are hoping to regain some of their lost honors.

Georgia Tech. Star at Columbia.

The Columbia player that every opposing team will watch with particular care this fall is Vandergrift, the former Georgia Tech star, who was ineligible last year but now is being developed for a tackle. Vandergrift is a big chap, well over 200 pounds, and if anything was ever taught to Georgia Tech players it has been speed and hard play, so that Vandergrift should be just the man that Percy Haughton needs as an example to several of his linemen.

PASTOR'S GIRL WIFE SAYS SHE WILL REMAIN WITH HIM

Bride Will Be 16 Oct. 29, She Says; Pastor Charged With Abduction.

By the Associated Press.
BALLINGER, Tex., Sept. 29.—The Rev. Joseph E. Yeats, in jail here on abduction charges filed in Oklahoma, said today he would return with the Sheriff of Nowata County. The girl, whom the 48-year-old minister is charged with abducting, declares she will stay with him. She is under care of the Sheriff's wife, pending arrival of her father, who is due tonight.

with the Sheriff from Alluwea, Ok.
Wearing a boyish bob and attired in clothing she said Mr. Yeats' sister had given her, the young woman was found in a field where Yeats' father was at work yesterday. The officers brought her here with Yeats, who was taken into custody at his father's farm near Winters.

"I will be 16 on Oct. 29," the girl said. "I had rather be in the cell with him (Yeats) and I am going to stay with him." She declared she and Yeats were married in Nowata on Sept. 18, that the minister returned to Alluwea and filled his regular appointment on the following Sunday and that she left home for school on Monday morning and Yeats picked her up in his automobile and they came to Texas. Yeats was quoted yesterday as saying they were married in Missouri two weeks ago.

"I have done nothing wrong except to misrepresent my wife's age," Yeats said today.

FRENCH EXPENDITURES AND RECEIPTS REACH A BALANCE

Equilibrium Attained First Time in 10 Years, Finance Minister Reports.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Sept. 29.—Finance Minister Clementel said before the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon the outlines of the proposed 1935 budget and declared that for the first time in 10 years complete equilibrium of the entire annual expenditure by budget receipts had been realized. His declarations had been eagerly awaited because reports of the supposed contents of the budget had been paralyzing the Paris Stock Exchange for days and had compelled the Minister to issue a denial that any attack on capital would be made in the budget.

M. Clementel assured the committee today that none of the measures proposed were such as to harm capital or to interfere with the activity of the exchanges.

The equilibrium achieved between expenditure and receipts in the 1935 budget, M. Clementel declared, would be maintained in the future and the Government and Parliament would have to watch against any measure causing an expense to the treasury without providing corresponding receipts.

PHIPPS TARGET OF WHEELER AT DINNER

Colorado Senator's Vote for Newberry and Steel Trust Cited.

By the Associated Press.
DENVER, Colo., Sept. 29.—Besides taking steps to straighten out third party ticket electoral tangles in Colorado, Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, made three speeches yesterday in Denver. In the principal one, delivered at night, he indorsed Senator Adams, Democrat, who is contesting the Colorado seat now held by Senator Phipps, Republican, and assailed Phipps' legislative record.

Identical La Follette-Wheeler electors will be named by three different groups in Colorado. Wheeler announced after his conference with leaders of divisions supporting that ticket. The compromise, which he said was satisfactory to local elements and the national management, will give the same electors party classification as Socialist, Farmer-Labor and Progressive. State tickets which may be filed along with the electors, he stated in beginning his night speech, would have no endorsement from the national organization.

Represents Private Interests.
Senator Phipps, he said, "by his every speech and vote has shown that he considers himself the representative of his own private business," and the "agent of the Pennsylvania steel mills and the steel trust in the Senate."

Citing Phipps' vote to retain former Senator Newberry (R-Mich.) in the Senate, the candidate predicted his defeat, because of those who so voted, only to have escaped with their political lives.

"This will be hard on Mr. Phipps, if he proceeds. In his absence I do not know who in the Senate will look after his private interests. Mr. Phipps confessed that he had wanted to kill a Government power project in Yuma County because it would reduce the profits of a

Wall Street News and Comment —SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The stock market quickly got over today whatever unfavorable influence may have been exerted in Monday's rise from 2 to 3 percent in the call money rate. The renewal on standing loans was put up to 5 1/2 percent, but there was no idea that this meant anything more than the temporary additional need for funds over the Oct. 1 corporation payments.

At the opening there was more or less irregularity, but before the end of the first hour prices had steadied and operations for the rise were gradually resumed in one after another particular stock. American Can was selling around 121 1/2 when word came that only the regular dividend had been declared. The fact that the stock did not go down but instead went up, indicated the presence of a considerable short interest which was ready to cover as soon as it was found that the dividend news was bringing no liquidation. On no day so far was the testimony to the strength of the market position of American Can so convincing.

Colorado & Southern and the St. Louis & San Francisco were the strong features among the rally. Inasmuch as Colorado & Southern's earnings are running at the rate of $10 a share, round off a $3 dividend to be declared for the year, seem reasonable. Directors of the St. Louis & San Francisco met Wednesday to discuss, it is reported, a preferred dividend. The way the stock shot up today might have been taken to point to a 5 percent. There was considerable difference of opinion as to whether the dividend was to be put on the dividend list at this time. St. Louis & Southern common, also a dividend prospect, was in demand. Gulf, Missouri & Northern Pacific was selling at a new high. Lehigh Valley crossed 61 on a renewal of estimates that Lehigh stockholders will receive between $12 and $15 a share from the distribution of the Cox Brothers Co. stock.

United Drug was bid up to a new high on reports of an impending increase in the dividend which is now $6. The advance in Timken Roller Bearing was also apparent to be the work of a speculative syndicate using as a slogan that the extra dividend, bringing the annual distribution up to $4, was to be considered as if it were regular.

Public Utilities were again in demand. North American finally got across $35. American Water Works had run up. American and Foreign Power shares were very strong. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore made a new high in anticipation that dividends on the common stock would take into account that earnings on the old are running between $25 and $30 a share.

A lot of short covering was done in the oil stocks as they fell away early in the day under the influence of gasoline price cuts. In the afternoon this repurchasing began to show, stocks like Marland and Coudens even getting above the Monday standard. Standard plate glass was very weak, again. Buying of Missouri Pacific was particularly active, the common, was a feature in the last hour and so was the continued advance in Lehigh Valley.

The stock market moved with considerable uncertainty during the latter afternoon and with the volume of business much reduced. Taking the list as a whole, however, the tone was firm even if no special inclination was displayed to renew the advance.

According to advices from Denver the Midwest Refining Co. at this time does not intend to reduce Wyoming crude quotations to meet the recent reductions in Mid Continent crude oil.

G. O. P. INCREASES CAMPAIGN BUDGET

Managers Find Estimate Made Several Weeks Ago Is Not Big Enough.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The Republican National Committee has had to increase its estimate of the cost of carrying the country for Coolidge.

This became known yesterday when William M. Butler, national chairman, came to New York after an extended stay in the West. He conceded the committee had been compelled to revise a tentative budget made up several weeks ago.

He declined to say what the new estimates were, adding he did not know whether the national treasurer had filed the report of expenditures and contributions called for by the Borah committee.

"It is my opinion," Butler said,
"that John W. Davis will not carry a single State west of the Mississippi River, not even Missouri. I have met men from almost every State in the West and the Northwest and the reports are most encouraging."

He predicted the Coolidge plurality in New York would be much higher than 125,000, although he would not fix any figure, and added that he believed the chances of the election being thrown into the House of Representatives were remote.

Butler was asked whether the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for the governorship would help the Republican ticket in this State.

"I should think it would help," was the reply. "Any vigorous State campaign will help the national ticket. It will get the vote out."

He was asked about Teapot Dome and Roosevelt.

"I don't want to discuss that," was the reply. "The matter is not clear in my recollection, but I think that matter was one which concerned the head of the department and that as a subordinate officer Roosevelt had nothing whatever to do with it."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST By Aline Michaelis

THE POET.
THE poet never seemed to note the road he passed along; his castles fair he built in air and sang his wistful song. His heart was ever full of hope and little, vagrant dreams, that cheered the way like sunbeams gay adrift on silver streams. And ah! the splendid schemes he had, the mighty deeds he planned, to make his name a thing of fame to ring through every land! "And then," he mused, "for her I love I'll build a home so fair that all who go that way must know Love's dwelling place is there. And it shall stand beside a lake where shining moonbeams stray, with stately halls and marble walls, rose-hued at dawn of day. A garden fair shall hedge it in with fragrance all around, till every day be glad as May with joyous bloom and sound." The poet never seemed to see how dull the way he went; though smoke and din the road hemmed in, he sang his songs, content. The years slipped by; with slower step the poet went his way, and as for fame? it never came, although his head grew gray. He never built his Love a house set in a garden fair; he brought no gems for diamonds to grace her raven hair. And yet his heart was ever light for, as he passed along, he built in air his castles fair and sang his wistful song.

Children's Bedtime Story :: By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Farmer Brown's Boy Sets a Trap

Who gets in mischief should be taught That mischief is with trouble fraught.

—Farmer Brown's Boy.

"It will be a good thing for Uncle Billy Possum to be kept a prisoner for a while," said Farmer Brown's Boy, talking to himself. "It will be a good thing for the old rascal to be shut up for a while and kept out of mischief. He is likely to stay under the back porch there all day, but as soon as it becomes dark he will come out. A steel trap set just inside that hole under the porch would be sure to catch him. But I won't set one. No, sir, I won't set one. Steel traps are cruel things. There's nothing I know of more cruel than a steel trap. I know what I'll do; I'll set a box trap just in front of that hole. A box trap will catch him without hurting him. I'm afraid that box trap I made to catch Peter Rabbit is too small, so I'll make another."

He hunted around until he found the right kind of a box, and then he made it into a trap. It was made so that one end and the top, which were nailed together, were held up by a string which passed over a stick at the back and then was made fast to a little piece of wood, which was held in place by another little piece that passed through the back end of the box. To this was fastened the bait. A couple of bricks were put on the top. Any one trying to get the bait inside the trap would make the little stick to which it was fastened move. This would set free the little stick to which the string was fastened, and the weight of the bricks would make the top and end drop and close the box up. The weight of the bricks would keep the trap closed.

Farmer Brown's Boy baited the trap with a piece of meat. He felt sure that the smell of that meat would be more than Uncle Billy could resist. Late in the afternoon he set the trap in front of the hole under the porch. "There," said he, "I guess this will do the trick. That Possum played a clever trick last night and was smart enough to get away. But he won't fool me that way a second time. If I don't find him in this trap tomorrow morning I'll be the most surprised boy that ever lived. Uncle Billy isn't so suspicious of traps as Reddy Fox and some of the other little people. I don't believe he'll hesitate a minute when he smells that meat. He'll walk right in to help himself, and he'll be a prisoner before he even suspects anything is wrong."

Now all the time under the porch Uncle Billy Possum was very comfortable and very well satisfied. He had eaten the two eggs Farmer Brown's Boy had put just inside the hole and had licked his lips over them. Uncle Billy is very fond of fresh eggs, and it was a long time since he had had one. The taste of them made him want more. So he decided in his own mind that he would stay a while. He would prowl around Farmer Brown's dooryard at night and sleep in this nice, safe place through the day. So Uncle Billy Possum was very well satisfied.

Oyster Pie.

I am sending a recipe for an oyster pie. I have never seen one published anywhere. They are very good; very nice for Sunday dinner.

Drain the liquid from one pint of oysters, add one cup of milk, salt and pepper to taste. Prepare a rich pie crust, using one cup of shortening to three cups of sifted flour and a little salt. After rubbing flour and shortening together add water, a little at a time, and use fork to mix it.

Line a deep pie plate and into it put the oysters; over them slice one hard-boiled egg, sprinkle 2 tablespoons of flour over it and dot with bits of butter. Put on top lid and bake in quick oven.

To the liquid drained from the oysters add one cup of milk, heat to boiling point, and add 1 tablespoon of butter rubbed into one tablespoon of flour. I cut about two oysters into small pieces and add to it. The sauce is to use in case the pie is too dry. This is an old recipe of my mother's.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Air It Thoroughly.

If the clothing is damp when removed, place it on a hanger and hang it in a current of air until thoroughly dry. It should never be put in the clothes closet while damp.

If You Dislike Waiting.

It is nice to keep a sewing basket containing some work tucked in a cupboard drawer downstairs. So often we must wait for some member of the family to appear before serving dinner and the time will not seem so irksome if one's hands are busy.

Sundry Suggestions.

Tea towels dried in the sun are sweeter and more sanitary. Linseed oil will clean black walnut frames and give them a lovely luster.

A clean cloth dampened with kerosene will remove sooty marks from woodwork.

A silk slip that has become a little shabby can finish its career as a "nightie."

Make the most of the green vegetables and fruits while they are in season and not so expensive.

Cornstarch Cake.

For this are required 1/2 cup of granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons of Crisco, 1/4 teaspoon of salt, 1 1/2 cups of sifted flour (pastry), 1/4 cup of cornstarch, 1 egg, 1/4 cup of sweet milk, 1 teaspoon of cream of tartar, 1/2 teaspoon of baking soda, 1 teaspoon of lemon extract and 1/4 teaspoon of almond extract.

Beat the Crisco to a cream and gradually beat the sugar into it. Add the yolk of the egg and beat thoroughly again. Dissolve the soda in the milk and add this. Put the flour, cornstarch, salt and cream of tartar in the flour sifter, sift and mix well. Then add these ingredients to the others; flavor the batter; beat well for a few seconds. Last of all, fold in the white of the egg, previously beaten to a stiff froth.

Bake in a well greased, shallow cake pan in a moderate oven about 40 minutes.

FASHION FRILLS

LONDON.—The new necklaces are about two yards in length, being made up largely of diamonds strung on platinum chains. They are wrapped twice around the throat and twice around the left wrist.

LONDON.—Not long ago, the sapphire was on the top wave, but today extremely smart women are wearing emeralds or excellent imitations.

NEW YORK.—Hand-painted powder puff cases are finding their way today into modish wrist bags. These cases are of soft leather, painted with pastel tinted flowers or a shepherdess.

PARIS.—Vesuvian red, that soft and striking shade, is not being combined with black this season as much as other shades of red have been. It is used, rather, with a deep shade of ivory.

NEW YORK.—On some of the plainest of black felt hats now shown here there is an ornament of real jewels.

Strength

Strength Makes Flour Go Farther

The more natural Strength flour has, the more baking you can get out of a sack. Such flour absorbs more water, and rises better. Consequently you can use less flour and get the same quantity and quality of baking. That means economy.

The Strength of Valier's Enterprise Flour is the Strength of the rich, glutinous centers of the choicest hard wheat grown. No other wheat is ever used in Enterprise.

That's why every sack goes farther—makes more loaves of bread, more biscuits, or more and better cakes than ordinary flour.

Gives Lines of Grace So Prized In Paris

IN PARIS, the capital of Style, they have the secret—those women whose figures must have lines of grace and youth and fashion. Must—because they are the mannequins, the living models, for the great designers who create all styles.

In Paris, they can smile with favor on the P.N. Practical Front Corset, and call it "magic in corsetry," because it always will assure them of the beauty of figure so desired,

Make it a point yourself to call where the Practical Front corset is shown, in all the new styles and materials. Be fitted with care to your proper model and see how magical it will prove for you in ease, grace, beauty and youngness of figure.

FAVORITE STORIES

By Irvin S. Cobb

HE'D JUST FOUND IT OUT HIMSELF.

IN THE old days, before the justly celebrated Eighteenth Amendment went through, two Northerners, visiting in New Orleans, visited a certain establishment then famous, but now, alas, gone forever, where a special variety of exceedingly tasty—and exceedingly potent—cocktail was served. Neither of them had ever sampled this concoction, but they had heard it very highly spoken of. Their experiment proved satisfactory in every respect.

They drank their orders down, then called immediately for more of the same. The second service seemed to call for a third, but the gentlemanly bartender raised a warning hand.

"No, no, gents," he said. "I'm sorry, but we never give a customer more than two of these drinks. They're pretty strong."

"Just one more, please," pleaded one of the patrons.

"One's be done; it's against the rules of the house," said the attendant. "I'd advise you gentlemen to go along now and take a little stroll in the fresh air. You'll feel better for it."

After further fruitless argument, the visitors departed into the night by street on legs which suddenly had grown somewhat unsteady, one of the pair said:

"Say, listen, don't you hear footsteps behind us?"

The other hearkened.

"Hearse I do," he said. "What of it?"

"Why, it might be somebody following us."

"Well, what of that?"

"But it might be a footpad."

"Well, let him do his worst. He doesn't know there're eight
